President of Regis College
Very Rev. Louis G. Mattione, S.J.

REGIS COLLEGE
DENVER, COLORADO

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

April 27, 1969

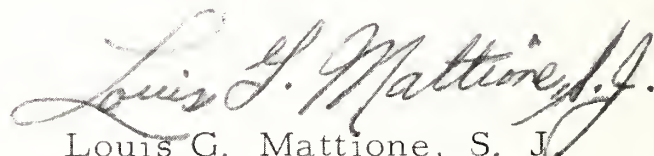

My dear Regis Graduates of 1969,

The completion of this academic year marks a milestone both in your life and in mine. For you it is the culmination of four years of effort here at Regis. For me it marks the end of my freshman year as President of the College after an absence of eight years.

Together we should have much for which to be thankful. . . and proud! During the past four years you have, hopefully, matured in mind and body, and are now ready to pursue your chosen vocation in this confused world. During just this one year I know that I have profited immeasurably and benefited much from my association with each of you.

As you approach graduation I can only extend my personal congratulations and assure you of the prayerful remembrance of the Jesuit community as well as the fond farewell of the entire Regis faculty and staff. We hope that you will remember your Alma Mater with affection and esteem as you go into the future . . . dedicated to the service of your Church, your country and all mankind.

Sincerely yours,

The President's Council

The President's Council is usually included in the yearbook in the proximity of the President and the Board of Trustees. And well it should be, for though its primary function is to advise and counsel the President in his administration of the College, it also provides a sounding-board for the Board of Trustees as the occasion and circumstances demand.

Composed as it is, of some of the outstanding businessmen in the Denver community, it provides a link of understanding between Regis College and the business community by carrying the spirit and word of Regis into the community, and in turn this business acumen available for the assistance of the College.

Even in a day of restructured Boards of Trustees, such a group as the President's Council will doubtless continue to provide a breadth of knowledge and interest of invaluable assistance to the President of the College and the Board of Trustees.

College Relations

The job of the Public Relations department is to sell the "image" of Regis College and their job is our concern. While students, faculty, and administration may not cherish this same concern, the task of unifying students, faculty, and alumni in terms of creating a dynamically viable image of Regis in the community remains formidable.

It must be noted, for purposes of public information, that students, who just may have something to do with making an image by their behavior in public places, in relationships with those outside the Regis community, and in the self-concepts they display, are not under the control of this office. Animals can destroy quicker than a department can build. Students have made an image and are selling it every weekend even though they seldom make the Regis Roll Call.

Business Office

“... those of us in financial administration at Regis are using means to reduce costs and allocate funds to priority needs which have proved successful in the business world, such as program budgeting, centralized purchasing, and cash flow forecasting . . . Finances need not stifle the planning of programs to attain academic excellence for the benefit of many.” Eugene Donohoue, Development Program/President's Report/1967.

Some quickly point out that many of the programs they envision yet remain in the planning stage.

“Unfortunately, we have to establish priorities in determining the outflow of funds.” Eugene Donohoue, 1968 Leadership Conference.

“What’s in it for Us?” The Mail Room

Robert Gagliardi, Receiving Room

The ultra-modern office of Bob “The Mailman” and Brother Bussen is neatly tucked away in the sub-level of the Pink Palace. Intra-campus communication lines depend upon the efficiency of these two men in transferring memos and packages. While Brother Bussen coordinates and directs the entire operation, Bob hustles from building to building making his daily rounds. Through their combined efforts, mom’s messages are faithfully delivered through rain, snow, sleet, and hail. Among Brother Bussen’s numerous duties, he offers a package wrapping service to accommodate those students and faculty who need bulk items packaged neatly for handling in the U.S. mail.

Brother Herbert Bussen, Receiving Clerk

Switchboard—Dial 0 for Operator

Regis recently decided to update and modernize the antiquated switchboard with installation of a larger and more efficient system. This new system provides a phone for all those persons the college thinks should have a phone. Trenches have outlined many parts of the campus and frequent misconnections still occur, yet intra-campus communications have been greatly improved. Mrs. Ruby Polsley, Mrs. Helen Grucnig, and Mrs. Ruby Collins are the receptionists in the main lobby of the Pink Palace who greet visitors and callers with equal charm and poise. As with the mail-room boys, these girls are a necessary component of Regis College.

and Their Charges at Rest-for a Minute

Freshman year is the roughest.

After the DiCola incident (a textbook case of crowd psychology) the Al Brown change supply (a popularity device not even the illustrious Max had employed) and several visitors nights at the local jail, the forefathers of O'Connell devised the O'Connell Hall Governing Board to aid and assist in the many problems of resident hall management. Composed of RA's and students, this board sought to hold the roof on a boiling pot of anarchy containing stereos emitting acid rock, an occasional pet, a dirty cleaning service, a trash chute fit for fires and over 200 unsocialized freshmen. In attempting to control, contain, and lessen the problems of freshman life at Regis this group employed techniques of counseling, aid, assistance and the good old fashioned campus. All things considered, their success was amazing.

You need it and I can get it.

Out of 1,000 you should be able to find one sucker.

Freshman Orientation

Slightly more than four hundred freshmen endured a four week program designed to integrate them into the student body. Under the direction of Jim Gold, who always knew which way was up if few other people did, the program contained testing, hazing, academic counseling, conversations with "responsible" upperclassmen and several forms of entertainment (e.g. one mixer with two bands).

Despite a few regrettable incidents, such as the Jack DiCola incident which demonstrated, among other things, a need to orientate upperclassmen, the orientation period ended on the positive side, with many freshmen realizing Regis is more than just a pit stop between woodsies.

You have to listen to some people, it makes them feel good.

Somehow this empty cup reminds me of you.

"... in four years your sons and daughters will hopefully develop all their skills."

I really should get some sheets next week.

I just work here. Work, Work & Work.

Study of the more abstruse regions of philosophy . . . always seem to have included an element not very much removed from a sort of insanity." — John Keble

I'll drink to that.

Boy! these Cliff notes are rough.

You wouldn't know how to handle it.

De Smet Hall

Residence Hall Director Rev. Robert Houlihan, S.J.

De Smet Hall Directors

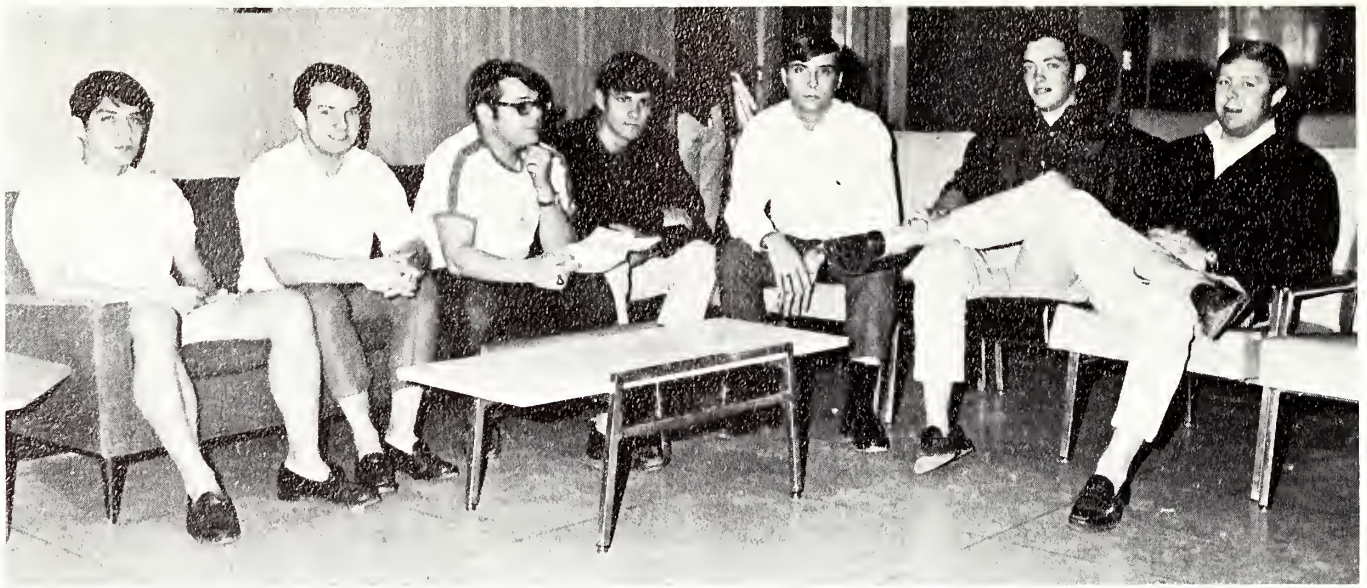

Babysitter, room clerk, house dick, friend, disciplinarian, counselor, and administrator are but a few of the roles these men are expected to assume simultaneously.

Under the direction and guidance of Father Houlihan, Hall Director and Dean of Students the last two years, sophomores and juniors in DeSmet Hall have gained previously unthought of freedom. Hours have been dropped and, with certain limitations televisions and ice boxes have been tolerated. Emphasis has shifted from complete silence to instilling respect for another's right to Rest and Study at his desire. Father Houlihan along with Father Torres and Father Mbuya, priests permanently residing in the dorm, and Mr. Terrence Connor, a young lawyer, have made themselves available to any student desiring mature and/or specialized counseling.

Under the leadership of G. Lauby, the Resident Assistants strive to preserve order while allowing a reasonably relaxed atmosphere. Handling (and being handled by) nearly 250 students and some assorted visitors on weekends and down nights requires patience, understanding, leadership and a certain degree of stupidity. Yet the R.A.'s, as they are called (among other things) by the students attempt to keep the TV, vending machines and phones in working order, the janitorial service from making things worse, the maintenance men notified of needed repairs, an occasional drunk quiet, the roof on the building, everyone happy and their own sanity. They never totally succeed.

Governing Board

The dorm Governing Board of De Smet Hall was this year's student-rights-turned-Establishment on the Regis College campus. Proceeding on the Lauby premise that the protection of rights necessitates legal subtlety the dorm Constitution Committee set out to out-bureaucratize the administration. DeSmet found itself functioning like a well-oiled machine with its Legislative Committees, Judiciary Committees, Constitution Committees, Investigating Committees, Section Representative Committees, Sheet Committees and Committees on Committees Committees. With such organizational management the average student with a regular campus could always be certain that his case would reach the Supreme Court Committee at least by 1972. Organized under the direction of G. Lauby and Resident-Assistant-turned-constitutional-lawyer Jerry Carpenter the Governing Board of De-Smet Hall should be operating efficiently for years to come—even without students.

Carroll Hall

Carroll Hall Directors

The blistering western sun beat down upon Denver. Kicking aside the tumble weeds, rolling a cigarette Sheriff Hannan, buffed his badge and turned to his Deputy Trienen who is admiring his keys. "Where the hell is Hoot and that new posse of his?" The Deputy sneezed and walked back into Carroll. A cloud of biological dust rose in the East and approached, the wind howled. The Sheriff was filling out Thanksgiving reports, when Hoot Gibson and his new posse burst in. "Well boss he got away, we tried, but a" "Okay Gibson I'm taking your phone away and giving it to Trienen!" And furthermore you ain't prosecuted nobody yet anyways, you're a disgrace to this ranch, and you're a disgrace to the Sheriff of all Sheriffs in Rome!" The posse went to their rooms and fondled their mops. Hannan stared into his mirror snarling, Gibson locked his door and Trienen set talking to the time operator feeling good.

and a Few of Their Minor Problems

... like I told Phil ...

Who remembers hours? Who remembers theirs? I grew up quicker and moved to an apartment. I'm cool, but I go back and visit my little buddies in Carroll Hall. They're all busy though, they lock their doors after dinner on Friday night, then come and join in the showers and sing Elvis and complain about how they don't appreciate Steppenwolf any more. At seven that night they're all gone. The next day they all go to the steam bath and belch at each other. "How come you're here?" Well, cause they won't put more phones in, and they painted over our art work on second floor and there are too many of those fruity juniors gonna move over, it's all a real hassle, and that's why I'm taking a steamer now. All those guys worrying about the army and their dates, when are they gonna realize that there's more important stuff to boggle your mind like the Cream broke up and we can't even get an S.D.S. chapter around these parts. Well, look back and back and back.

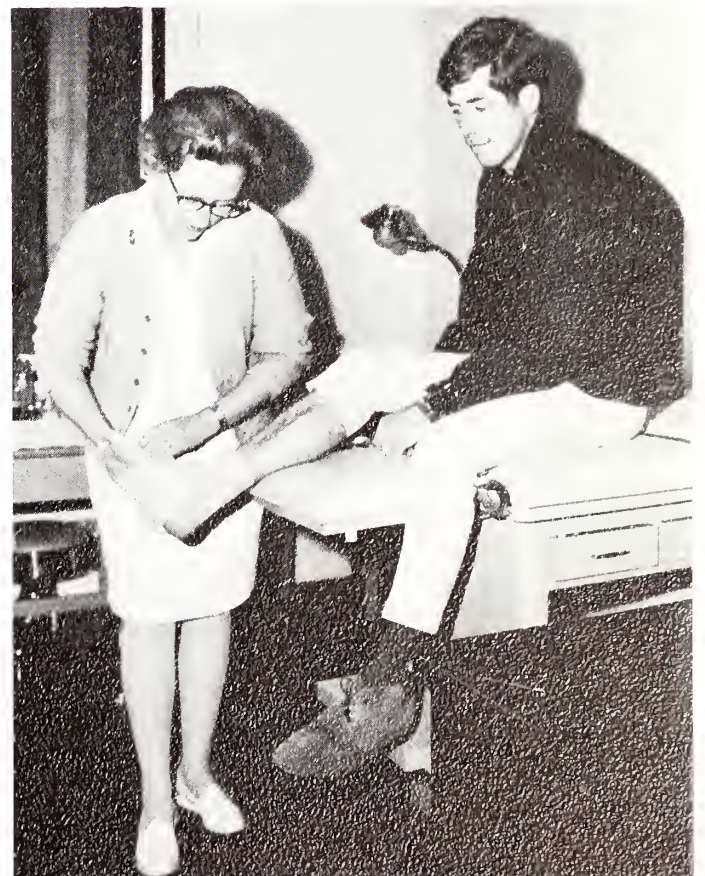

Would this be a summit conference?

Dear Ranchette,

In the beginning of the year I felt that congratulations were due to which ever factor was responsible for your presence; be it your thirst for truth and knowledge or a husband or a tremendous pitch by the Admissions Department. Now, at the end of the year I think someone should acknowledge your courage (or lack of better sense) for staying.

It's been a long year for you, as it has been for us. While we endured your weight lifting and foot races to the tune of Mary Haerr's shouting, "If there is any more noise I'll campus somebody", and other manifestations of your all-too-obvious presence, you put up with our animal antics and general resentment.

Jack McCullough termed it, "An end to an era", and so it is. But it is also the birth of a new age. Next year you will have our hallowed Carroll Hall to yourselves; treat it kindly for it is one of the few tradition-invested sanctums left on campus. With seniors pushed off campus, much of the responsibility for the success of student activities will fall into your hands. This is not to be taken lightly my dear ranchettes, a word to the wise we hope will suffice.

May God grant you the serenity to accept what you can't change, the courage to change what you can, and the wisdom to know the difference.

Chapel

The Chapel

This building is the student chapel. This picture does not show anyone in the chapel. This was not meant to imply that there is no student religious activity at Regis. Rather it symbolizes the abandonment of the quonset hut as the center of religious involvement. In an effort to inject God into the mainstream of student traffic, noon masses were moved to the second floor lobby of the student center. The lobby also serves as the location of Saturday and Sunday night worship. Confessions are now heard in Loyola Hall in the daytime, in Carroll Hall on regularly scheduled nights and on the grounds anytime a Jesuit with time can be found. The chapel does accommodate those choosing to worship on Sunday mornings at 5:30 and 10:00 A.M. and some special ceremonies.

St. John Berchmans Society

M. Fuerniss, R. Proctor, G. Groene, R. Roth.

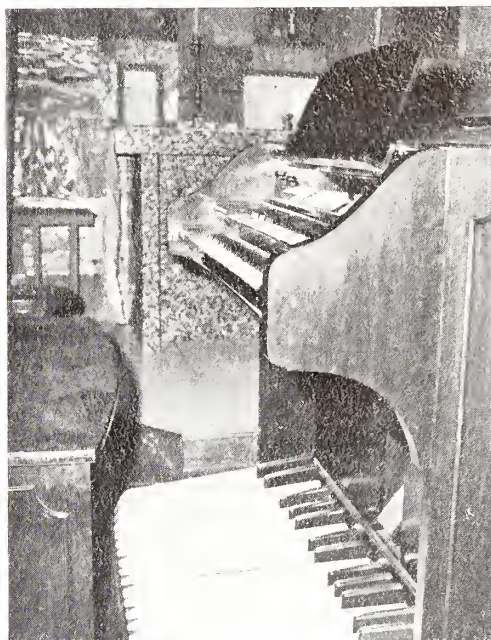

R. Carter, A. Wise, E. Korpalski, T. Manning

One of the few genuine clubs on the campus, the St. John Berchman's Society performs its functions nearly every day of the academic year. Primarily responsible for providing services for the numerous masses, the society has seen better times. Today there are few students who realize its existence, but the society perseveres. Under the inspiring direction of Father Olszewski, the small but loyal group hangs together.

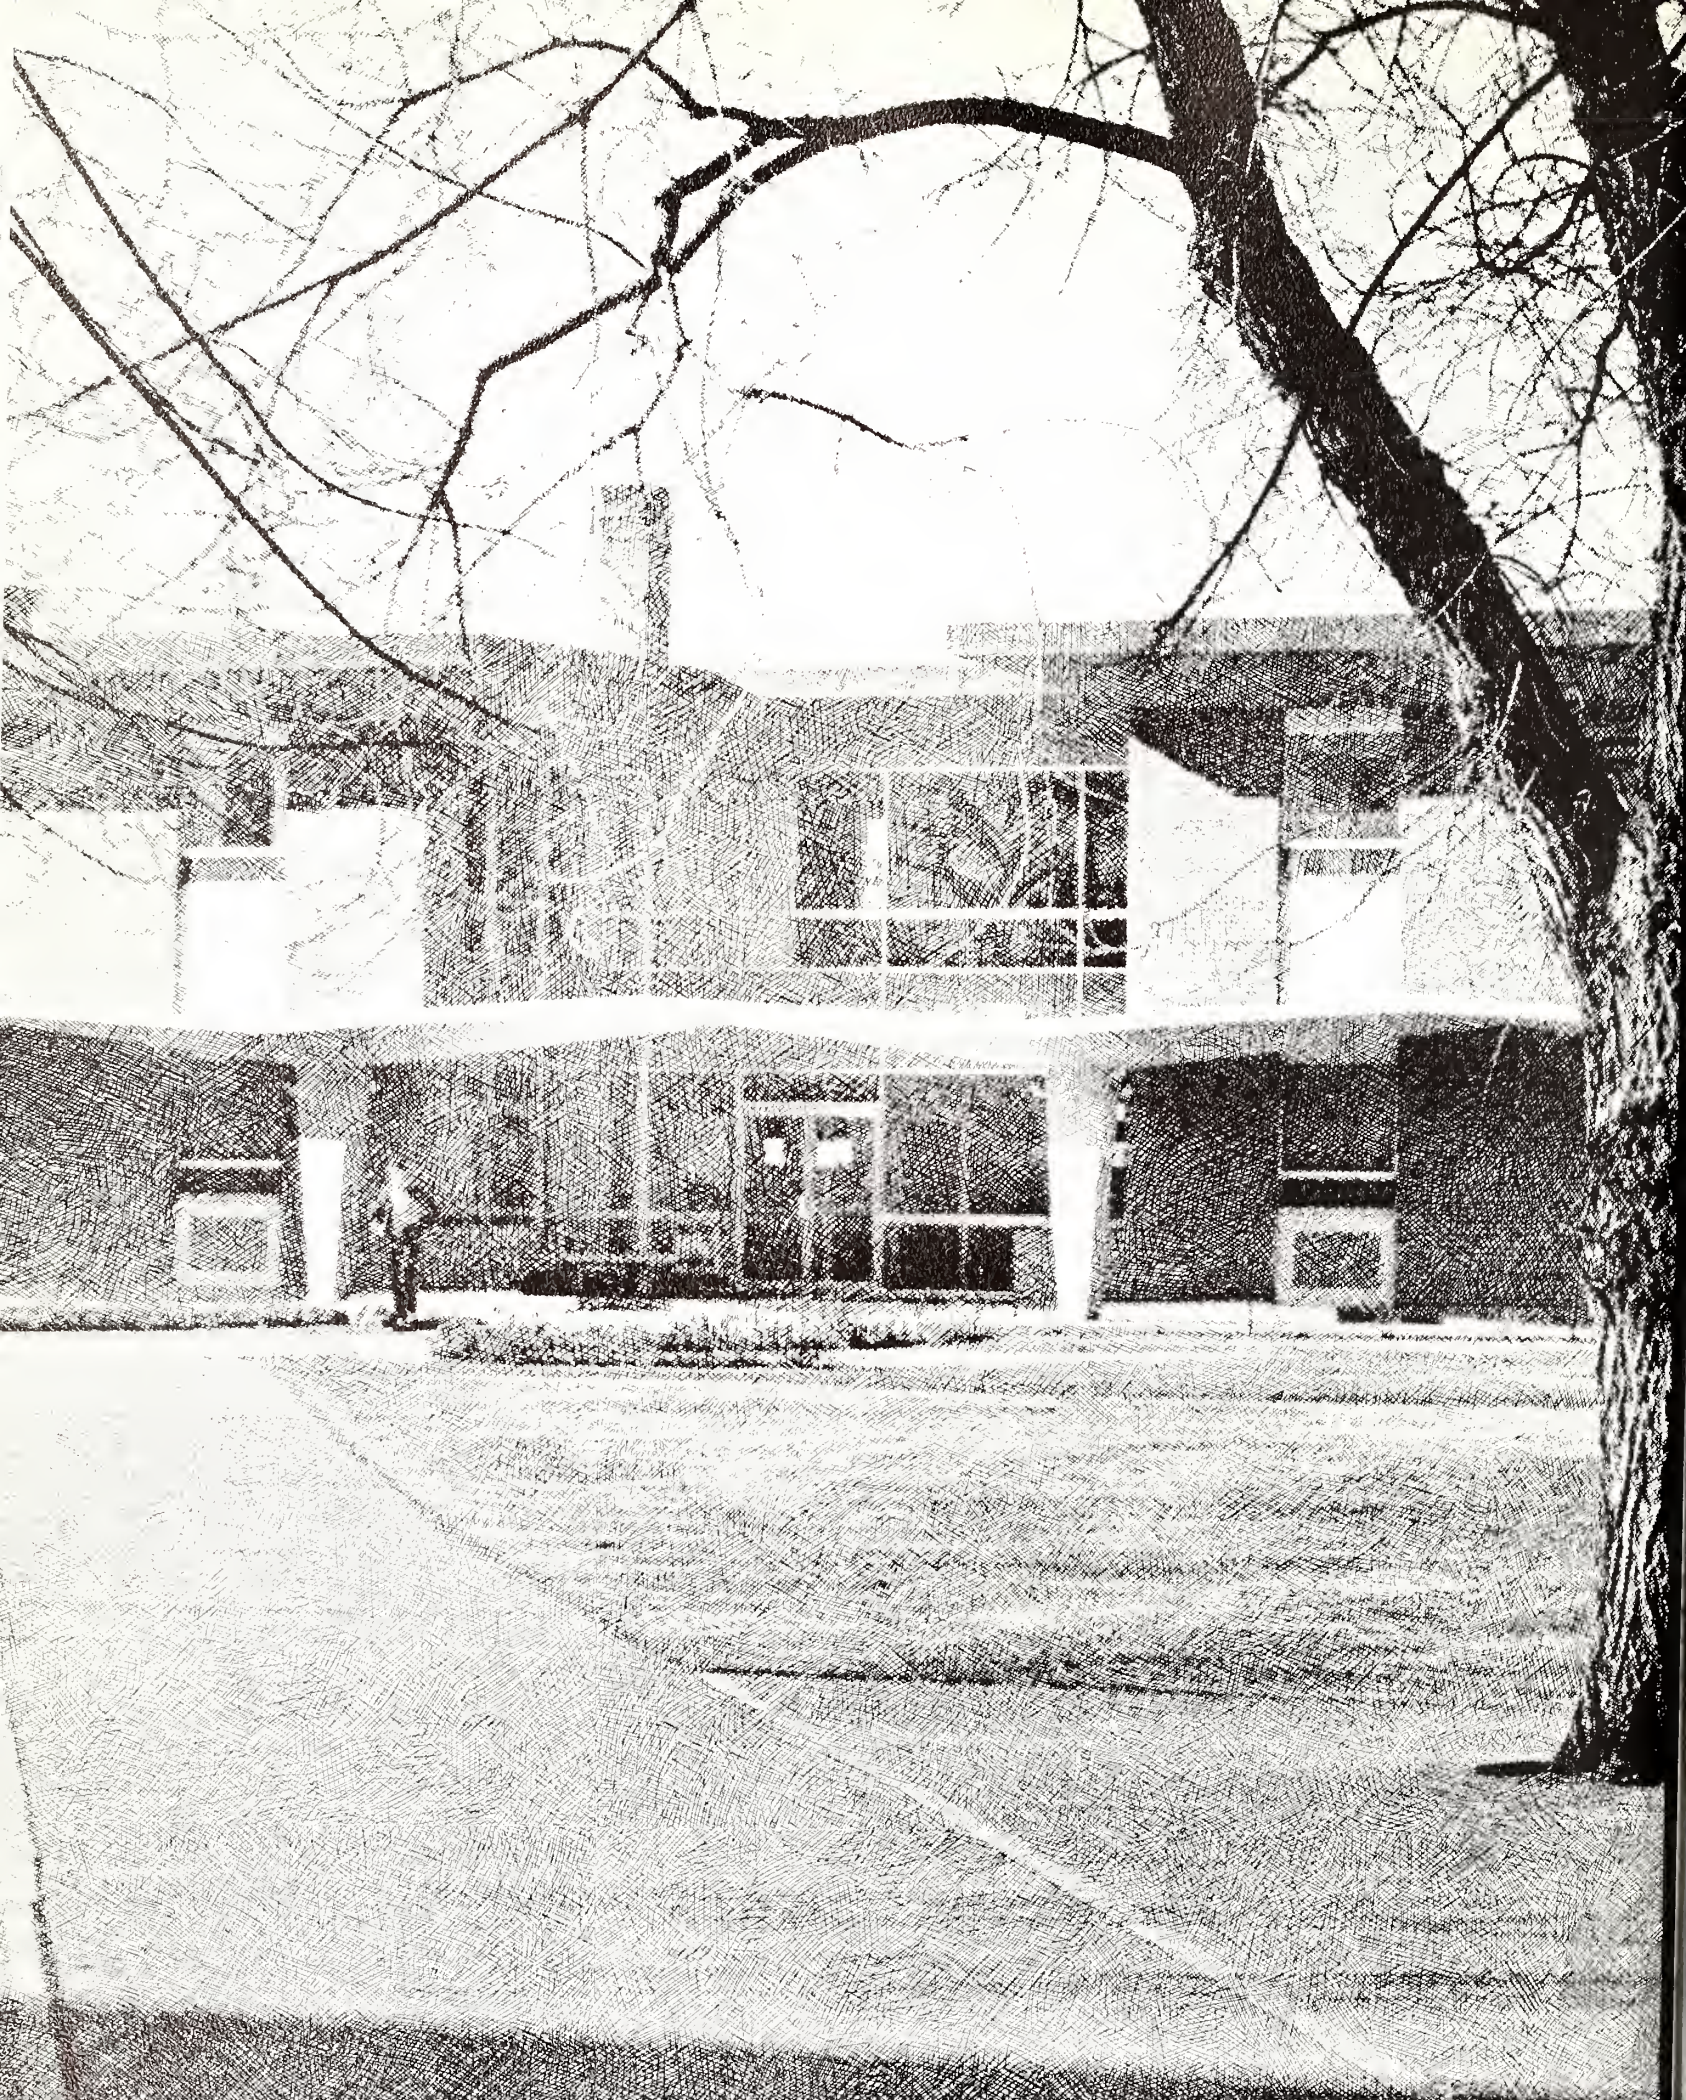

A secondary role of its members is to promote further student participation at the holy sacrifice of the Mass. Despite this vital role, its members manage to stay anonymous. The aims of the society are summed up in the words of its president Rick Carter who profoundly stated, "We try to get servers to masses, yon know".

Associate Dean of Students

Miss Connie Keough

Dean's Personnel

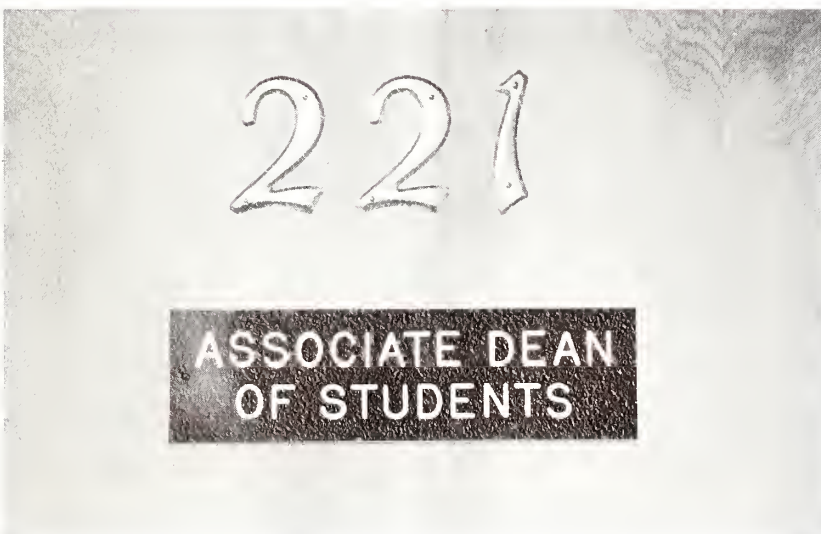

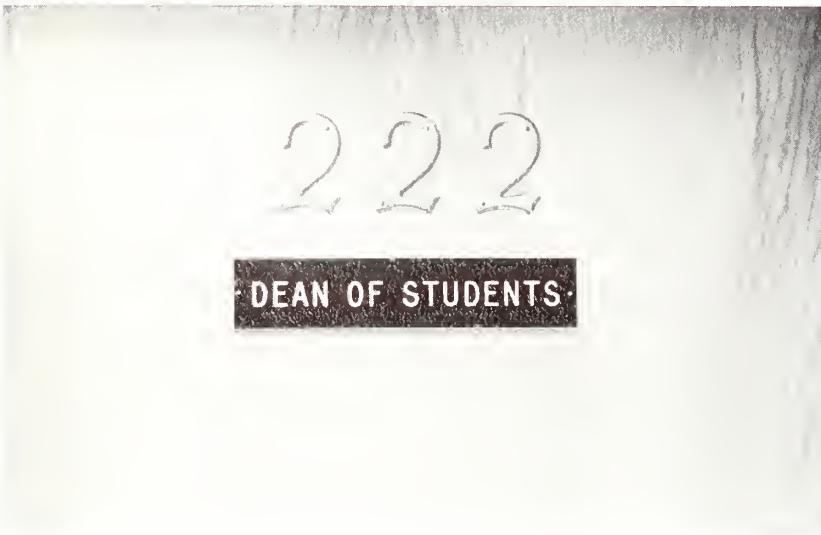

From high atop the Student Center Building in the Dean of Student's office, administrative decisions emit daily. Primary responsibility for their effects falls on Father Houlihan, Dean of Students, and his associate, Miss Keough - both already famous (or infamous, depending on your prospective) for their co-operation with students.

However no man (or woman) is an island and in this office the tolling typewriters of Mrs. Mary Payne and Mrs. "Ellie Mae" Kelly complete the team. Along with their typing duties these two handle parking tickets, the scheduling calendar, senior interviews and student placement; dispense (and collect) information; set up appointments (no note necessary) and generally keep the office in an uproar.

Their efforts have made the room both one of the most efficient on campus and a "must" stop for anyone passing through the building. Strange isn't it, how you meet the strangest people in outer offices?

Noon Mass

The acceptance of the post as Chaplain and head of religious involvement and activities at Regis College was undertaken in September by Rev. W. Olszewski. Bearing in mind the alternations of the Catholic Liturgy, the newer and more demanding problems of Christian Living and the greater need of proper counseling, Father Bill (as he is called by his admirers), began his mission by sponsoring Antioch Week-ends. The purpose of these 'sanctum sanctorum' supplemented the old idea of retreats, however, exceeded them by inserting a deeper cognizance of the student's religious position, and how to logically support these affirmations. Another novation was the movement of noon Mass from the chapel to the Student Center lobby.

1968-1969 Executive Board

I danced right into this job.

President Paul Max and his executive board witnessed several advances. They enlisted Jack McCullough and a committee of G.A. members to re-write a new constitution for the Student Senate, and aided other G.A. committees to investigate off-campus housing, the average class size, to cut policy, the food service and various student organizations.

The Executive members also aided the Admissions, Athletics, and Development offices in "selling" Regis to the general public. Max's last G.A. meeting failed to draw a quorum.

Inspired by the formats of Samuel Butler's notebooks, the chastity of Rebecca West, and the perceptions of Ralph Nader, the Rebus fearing death by stagnation turned their mirrors at a unique angle and watched and wrote. Working on the premise that art has nothing to do with communication between person and person, only with communication between different parts of a person's mind; the staff opened their doors to all entrees, read and reread, suggested, cut and recut, added and subtracted, rejected and accepted, until finally through the faded tobacco smoke and sawdust rays of dawn, Louie turned to John, ole Doc laughed at Peter and a recogible mess had been condensed to a tangible publication. These men - the perpetual priesthood.

"I believe in every breath I take". - Tim Hart. Spearheaded by its occasionally incoherent editor-in-chief, the B&G continued its bi-weekly tradition . . . as an average. The pot-raising full house of columnists (the knights and two 8's) buffed forth diverse copy on countless college games.

Whether it's Ginny's simple-minded cynicism or Jack's biting satire, the readers took a perverse pleasure in persuing the Friday product. Skip beat the sport's scene while Clarence's under-rated and over-educated ear reported on the music of the day. Doc's veined babbling brought a mixed reaction but mostly no action. At midyear the helm shifted to the hands of Mark Angelos who continued the confusing tradition of mixing opinion and news, quantity and quality via the Brown and Gold.

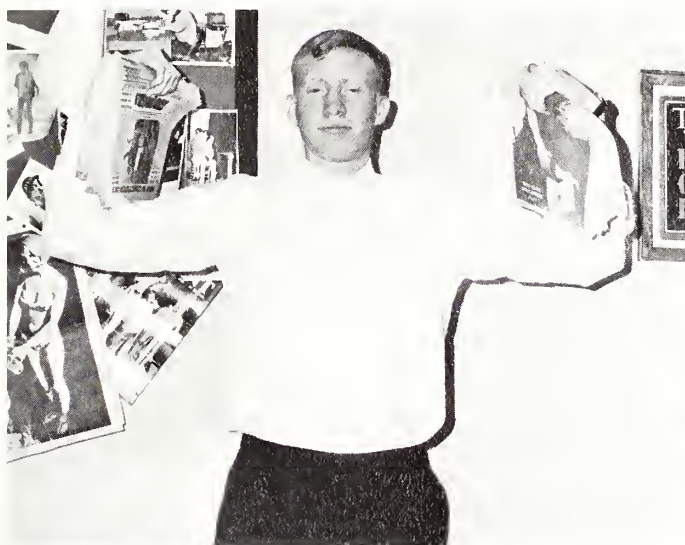

I'm the sincerest guy on this campus.

Well, they always read Ann Landers.

... and they still had trouble getting it out on time.

Manpower.

Let it never be said that he didn't hold up his end.

If I could only get ahold of Jezo.

It was a very good year.

The Darkroom

"See what the boys in the back room have!" - G. Lauby

"I want my pictures first." - Tim Hart

The most demanding and sanity-challenging job on campus is that of Darkroom Chief, popularly titled "Pit Boss". Trying to supply the RANGER and the Brown and Gold plus the publicity office and all the campus political and queen candidates with pictures seemingly requires the development of innumerable prints and a negative personality. Just ask Len Ellis, Tom Coursey, or Kevin Leahy.

Len knew better than to take the job. Tom tried, but faded off to the slopes whining to anyone who would listen. Only Kevin survived, but not without paying the darkroom devil his due. In the last 17-day RANGER sprint, Kevin could be heard alternating between crying, shouting obscenities, and snoring while standing on one leg.

When not pushing himself, Kevin worked on Dick "Sarcasm" Shumaker, Tom "Flash" Nickolai, Peter "Art" Maloney and Kathy "Lois Lane" Moore for anything he could get off them.

Perhaps the most poignant statement concerning the darkroom was uttered by James M. McCaffrey, "Everything is black and white and lousy shades of gray".

But I over exposed her.

"Laughs & Grins" prepares his best darkroom mix of the year.

How do you expect me to free associate with censorship?

Well, what do you expect from a Polack?

The Metaphysics of a Yearbook Staff

The trouble with reality is that it defies total definition. Its dimensions cannot be captured in one medium nor can one encompass it with boundaries. It is best approached as a kaleidoscopic vision manipulated in its dynamic process by the nervous hands of time. More important, one is part of that process attempting to collect the jigsaw parts of a whole that we can never view. To capture a phenomenon it is necessary to weave a tight net of words and photographs to be thrown from every imaginable angle: for variation is the face of reality.

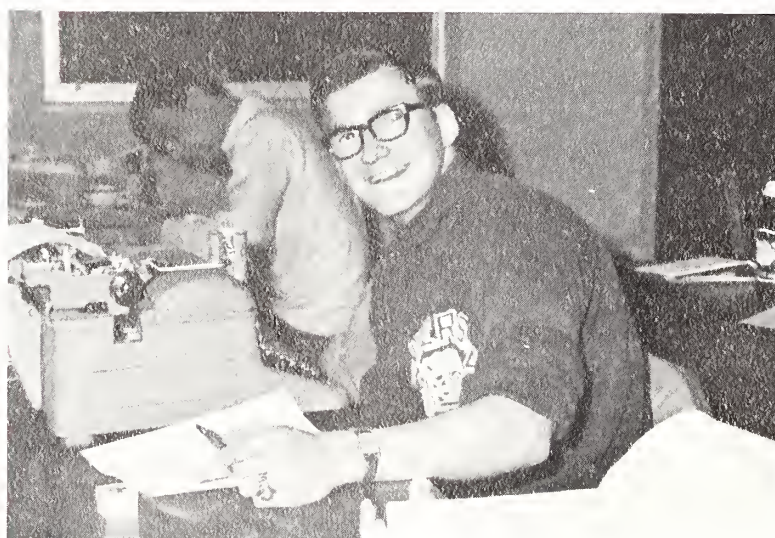

Head metaphotician, Greg Lauby, and his staff of truth seekers, approached this phenomenon in as diverse a manner as conceivable, attempting to surround it with as many weapons as creatively possible. What has been caught and puzzled together during many tedious hours of meeting deadlines and wasted weekends is one year of Regis College. It is only a part of the whole as all truths are but partial ones. The PAST, this staff discovered, is like trying to embrace the wind.

Well fancy meeting you here.

If I can fake this I'll only be 8 pages short.

Well, I'm not the only one here inflicted with midnight madness.

I should be studying at the Heights.

It's kinda "blump".

But you've got the whole thing upside down.

But I'm studying to be a portege of Father Klocker.

I'm the last silent suffering martyr.

Regis Songsters

The Regisongsters reorganized three years ago by Mike Griske under the direction of Mr. G. Marston Haddock are still exercising their vocal cords for fun rather than overflowing crowds. The club managed to warble its way through several concerts running into a few off key notes from our musically disinclined Administration. They hit the road for a few weekend stands around the Colorado area and even made some inroads into Wyoming. Their Christmas Concert in conjunction with the Mercy School of Nursing provided a well polished repertoire of popular selections.

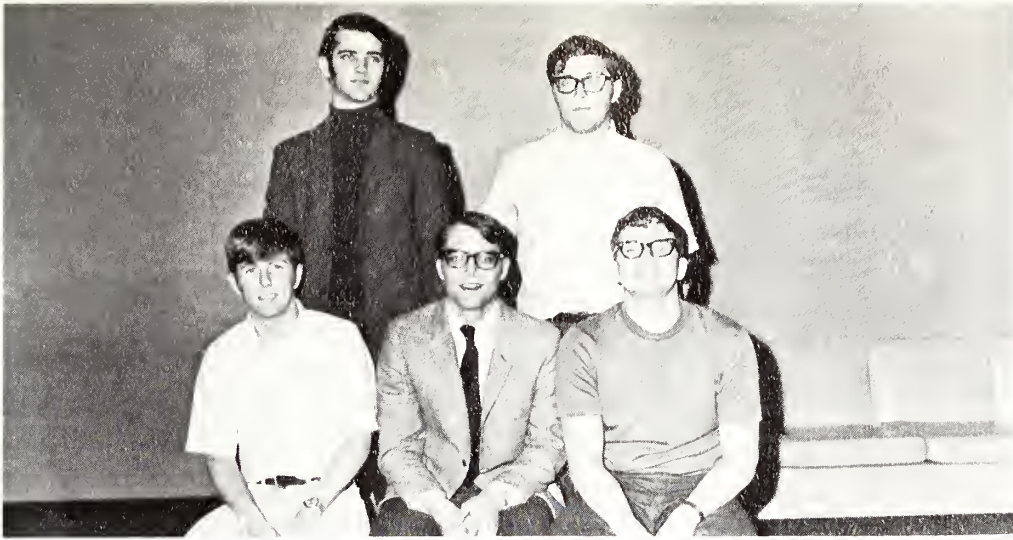

The least you can do is try.

This is a Lou Chiara original.

Italian Club

Julius Caesar died gloriously, Benito Mussolini rose and fell, Sophia Loren and all the rest: those that drank wine and crossed the Tiber on white horses, the Italian heritage with their Lucky Lucianos and Al Capones, those proud ancestors fell too! Time passed, blood exchanged, and the courageous stood with their backs to the wind striving to protect this heritage. The ravioli breathed congregated here at Regis, threw folk festivals, queen candidates, dances for the mentally retarded, and succeeded. An organization, a formation of ideals, the group continues to flower. Their tastes have catered to the variables, the awards bestowed upon them have been digested. The Italian Club surviving and functioning through the test of time.

Alpha Delta Gamma

This year Alpha Delta Gamma, that fraternal brotherhood ever dedicated to Catholic Social action, offered the Halloween Dance and the St. Patrick's day dance to any and all interested parties. After manfully facing their first crisis of the year, the unavailability of an eligible candidate for president, this group discovered Eric Hibbison and proceeded down the road in search of a masculine identity.

Besides passing off the above mentioned dances and ushering at community services, the brothers sought to benefit their own via house parties. Their recipe seemed to be alcohol, Loretto lovelies, unusual themes and a special brand of wildness, all mixed in appropriate proportions.

As one member said, "ADG is the best frat on campus. It offers a little bit of everything".

Alpha Kappa Psi

Alpha Kappa Psi

Under the non-existent leadership of prestige-pursuing Bob McNichols, who went inactive second semester, Alpha Kappa Psi lost a great deal of the "exclusiveness" previously associated with the organization. However, they fell victims of what the General Assembly Organizational Review Committee termed problems involved with leadership and a president "Who never seems to be around when you need him."

They did sponsor two tours and ushered at the Mass of the Holy Spirit and other school functions the first semester. The brothers also offered the Coronation Ball to the Regis community as their major function of the year.

The second semester witnessed new leadership with proposed tours and films for all business majors, promised lectures for interested parties and a pledge class with members under a 2.00, a Regis first. They also planned to deliver the promised prizes to the queen of the Coronation Ball.

Alumni Banquet

Following the "Hustlers" concert Bill Mott and company offered a brunch and bar to the alumni and seniors of the college. For the alumni it was a "Let's get together and catch up" time while the seniors were expected to develop a sense of community belonging and indebtedness which could be lifted via the senior fund. As Bill so perceptively put it at a later class meeting, "You guys have four years here to remember".

So, to the tune of the Eric Ross Trio, the gathering ate, (courtesy of Serv-o-mation Mathias) danced, (wild fox-trots) and drank (at 50¢ a shot) the night away.

I just love alumni affairs!

Regis College

Bowl Team

Drilled ruthlessly for months by the Vince Lombardi of mental gymnastics, Mr. Gallagher, the Ranger front five of Eric Hibbison, Robert Squier, James Fitzgerald, Tom Kosina and "dashing" Doug Tisdale began running through a few warm up drills in early October. Furiously digesting as many facts as possible they had munched their way through Peter Stuyvesant and Diogenes by the end of the month and were ready for their pre-season scrimmages. Blitzing past the J.I.B. (Jebbies in Residence) and totally devastating the L.H.C. and T.B.C. teams the squad was ready for New York and the North Park team on November 9. North Park must have scouted out all the pre-season matches for when the "Fabulous Five" headed for the showers they found themselves on the short side of the scoreboard. Off days even came to the Packers this year.

To those who make the tri-weekly jaunt to those sacred chambers, labs constitute a time-consuming phenomena in the exploration of the unknowable and the intangible. Science Society

- I. Diffusion and Osmosis of a Science Society
- II. The materials for this experiment are:
 - a) chest x-rays (with nurses and truck)
 - b) job interviews (including successful talkers)
 - c) Arthur Melville (an unstable compound, whose reactions must be constantly watched)
 - d) David Schoenbrun (a catalyst who won't enter into any reaction)
 - e) radio station (in which if there isn't any time the student doesn't have to do)
- III. A short synopsis of the reactions in this experiment is now left up to the student to decide. In an overall view the total reaction involves a loss of energy through the diffusion of too much gas and the osmosis of too many un-scientific problems. If the reaction and the reactants are properly watched however, the products of carcer day can yield sufficient results.
- IV. Data: Steve Treinen, Pres.; Duane Braunagel, Treas.; Ron Mier, Vice-Pres.; Richard Kafka, Exec. Sec.; Joe Trottnr, Sec.; 22 other discreet elements
- V. Conclusions: The student is to now review the principles involved in the totality of the experiment, figure all the variables, and to predict the outcome of all future reactions and products from these 27 elements. He may see events of promise, furtherment of scientific attitude, and finally collective steps toward the future.

Rho Chi Sigma

Hampered the first semester by the loss of every senior except their President, Rho Chi rallied the second semester to regain most of the lost members and staged an aero-space fair on parents weekend. The fair, which required over two years of planning, was the outstanding feature of the weekend, drawing over 5,000 people in three days.

Under the direction of Tom Peters the brothers, like the other campus fraternities, updated the pledging procedures and had a respectable pledge class. They also attempted a restaging of the car rally and succeeded, barely.

The Space Fair

As a follow-up for their Science Fair last year, Rho Chi Sigma planned an Aero-Space display for March 13-16. Trying to show man's use of the sky for defense and information to counter the popular opinion that we are currently struggling to climb to ignorance with the nation's space programs, the brothers worked to gain exhibits from 15 different companies.

Through their efforts a Titan missile, an Apollo Power Support System and a World Data Center Control for weather prediction, along with other related displays, graced the Regis campus. The fair drew not only students but also visitors from the entire Denver area.

Under the auspicious of the Italian Club, the annual Folk Festival played before a packed house on November 7th. Mr. John Foley S.J. captured the audience's scrutiny with legendary recollections of love affairs and some of his original material. The excellent instrumentation and witty lyricism of the Twenty String Bluegrass Band added to the 'en masse' participative attitude of all. The escape to the Waldenesque posture of mind, the reduction of confusion to simplicity and the addition of rhythmical minstrelsy dispersed by the performers diverged into spirits of all.

If any building on the Regis Campus could be called a living thing, it is the student center. But since this paragraph is supposed to deal with the library, we'll restrict ourselves to the library. Of course the library is pretty much like a living thing anyway, or so one would think with the way the drinking fountain talks back.

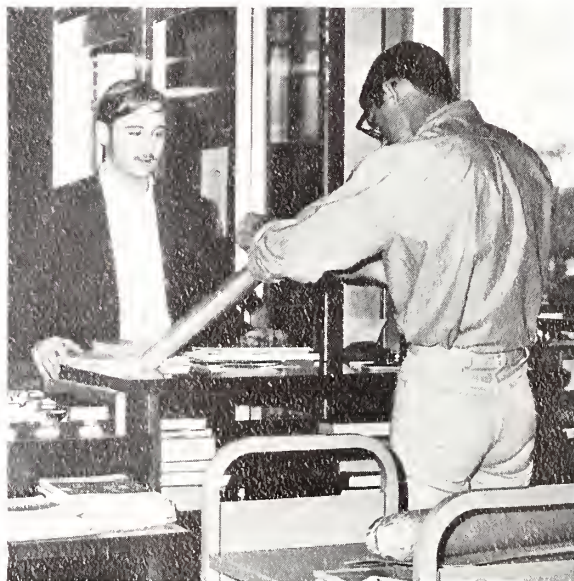

This year marks a special phase in Regis history. Earl Tannenbaum, who capably headed the library for several years, left for greener pastures (a pay raise). Dennis North was appointed to step in Earl's shoes, but the chief prudently took his shoes with him. Dennis brought his own shoes along and things have been running smoothly ever since.

Pi Delta Phi

The Brothers Francais of Pi Delta Phi's Gamma Chi chapter at Regis despite the antics of the Grand Charles this year maintained their usual undying allegiance to the culture, politics and language of the French people. Fraternity President Frank Ortolani strategically shifted the emphasis to the French West Indies this year giving a personal slide and lecture program of the academic and social life of the islands. Mr. Robert Luc the French consul general to Denver also put in an appearance as a guest lecturer later in the year. It was rumored that he was attempting to use the fraternity as a front for changing Francs into Eagles. The fraternity also sent Frank Ortolani and Joe Branconi as representatives to the annual National Convention in New York City this year.

Varsity Soccer

The 1968 soccer season got off to an encouraging start with an impressive 6 to 2 victory over Mines. This game, well attended, kindled hopes once more for the ever-elusive winning season. But it was not to be. Although the team apparently had the experience and talent to be successful, unforeseen internal difficulties eroded the intangibles - spirit and desire.

The team had lost only three starters from the eleven of last year. On paper this sounded good, but all three vacated positions were on the forward line, and this hurt the offensive power of the Rangers.

The win over Mines was preceded by two preseason triumphs, and enthusiasm was high. But the ball handling, shooting, and teamwork deteriorated steadily in the next four games, resulting in losses to Colorado University, Colorado College, Air Force, and Denver University. By this time both fan and team spirit was at a low point. The last five games of the season the Rangers were 2-2-1. They overcame Colorado State University and Baptist College, while losing to Mines and Wyoming. The Rockmount game ended in a tie.

If next season is to be a winning one, the team will have to lick the same problem they faced with little success this year.

Karate Club

Instructors: Rich Malwitz, Larry Kishiyama, Jerry Carpenter

Karate, "the art of open hand", must be used with scrutiny and extreme care. Various and sundry seasonal calls exist to armor oneself against any oppressor, be it male or female. With a deep detached voice, the master of this oriental art can withstand any advance, be it detrimental or passionate

This "sport" or "art" as you may care to apply the term, carries a strong appeal to those who wish to expend some inhibited desire. The Regis Karate Club follows in line with their devotion to decisive defense maneuvers. "Hai" on the agenda of team kicks and chops is a break launched as the organizational need of consistent and adequate facilities. When their companions get out of hand, the club has Larry Kishiyama to conduct drill time. Imagine you've encountered a trauma, Larry will come on with an appropriate yell for clutching the problem by the scruff of the neck.

For your own protection, Jerry Carpenter assists Larry in the demonstration of the arts application. Regional exhibitions and hard work outline the clubs activities, with an accompanying scent of cynicism when matters fall unnoticed.

A great deal of work has been demonstrated by the Karate club. Whatever the calling, the club follows through with the proper shout, and practices the essential law of the art. "They're careful how they use it."

The intramural football season proved, once again, to be the roughest, most interesting, and most competitive on-campus sport. The tide changed as the losing teams of the past became the champions and near champions of this year, forcing the previous winners to relinquish their long-held crown. The season riddled with bruises and abrasions, was lengthened considerably by a poorly timed sprinkler system combined with weak communications between teams and intramural heads.

The season was highlighted by a belated but tense championship game, played on a snowy, cold November afternoon. Despite the weather conditions, tempers flared and touchdowns were traded one for one. The lead had changed hands at least five times during a game which resulted in a Denver Club victory over the Machine 38-34. It was the Machine's second unsuccessful shot at the coveted title.

Varsity Tennis: 1968-1969

Kelly Fisher, Jim Flatley, Gene Gasiorkiewicz, Rich Kowalsky

"Hi, sports fans. Big Bill here!"

One of the most uncommon occurrences during the past few years, around Regis, was a winning team. Last year the tennis team's 9-8 season was one of the winningest records on campus. Losing only one senior, Gary Kowalsky, this year's netters look more promising than ever before.

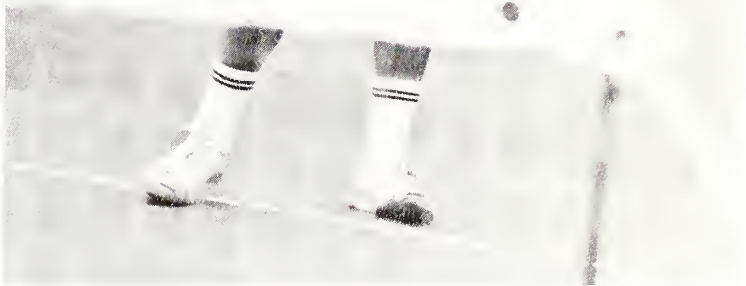

As a reward for last year's season a scholarship program was initiated, allowing $1300.00 for top net men. Kelly Fisher, Rich Kowalski, Rich Weisbecker, and Jim Flatley are the recipients for this year's sum. Bill Matt, the dedicated and well-liked coach, will try to produce an even more outstanding season record.

Due to the sunshine activity on campus during the spring, sunbathers enjoyed watching a winning team in 1968. The team hopes for and expects a bigger and more active attendance this year; considering the aggressive and winning spirit displayed by the tennis squad in the past and this year's promising weather forecasts, their hopes should be fulfilled.

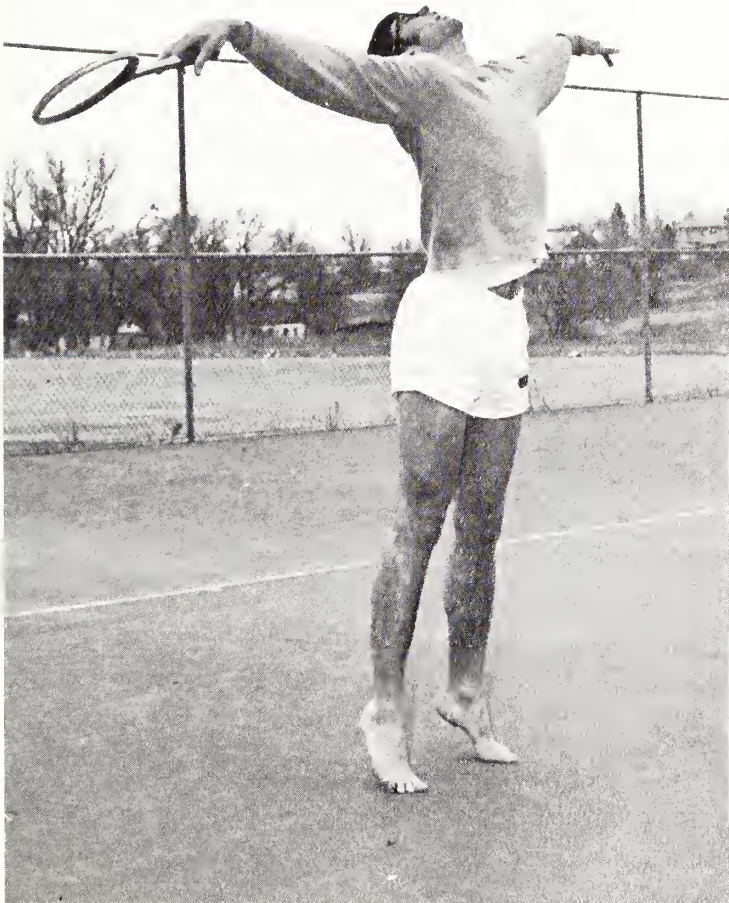

Gene Gasiorkiewicz, Greg Mudge, and some experienced freshmen will round out the squad.

The Hustlers

The 1969 Homecoming of the Regis Alumni was highlighted by the performance of a mad-cap musical group known as the Hustlers. A local group, well known in the evening world of ski retreats and night spots, the Hustlers provided a brief renaissance in the now defunct Regis Concert series. They came on twenty minutes late to face a slightly irritated audience, but soon captivated an increasingly receptive group of music lovers. Surprising nearly everyone with their versatility, this talented group varied from sad ballads to satire, from good time songs to complex harmonies. Facing a larger than financially anticipated crowd, the Hustlers responded with one of the best shows presented at Regis in a long time. Bridging the traditional gap between alumni and students, the Hustlers set the perfect note for the festivities that followed. Perhaps there is justification in hoping more of this type of entertainment will return to the Regis scene.

We heard a line so long . . .

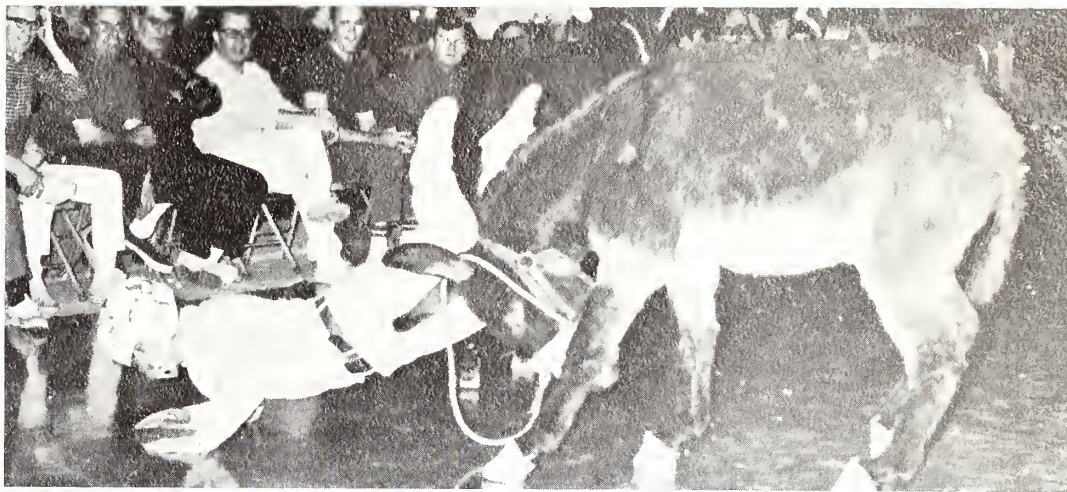

"... and you want to travel with her . . ."

On Thursday night, February 6, Regis students, alumni, faculty, the "KDKO Soul" Basketball Team, and eight belligerent asses lined up for a replay of last year's popular Donkey Basketball Classic.

Sponsored jointly by the Denver and '77 Clubs, the tilt featured four separate 8-minute contests. In the first, the Ranchettes downed their male counterparts unmercifully, 2-0. Tim Brake was awarded a "D" for effort, a trophy, and assorted sore muscles for his up-and-down equestrian talents. In the second mis-match, the KDKO Soul All-Stars shellacked the Alumni, 6-2. The consolation match saw the students bomb the alumni, 2-0, and the All-Stars emerged as champions by upsetting the coeds, 6-2.

In a special "straight" round-ball contest, the Soul All-Stars added another win to their 41-1 city record by clubbing a harried Intramural aggregation in a 32-minute endeavor. "Doctor Daddio" was low-point man with 1.

Mass of the Holy Spirit

The Mass of the Holy Spirit again christened the opening of another academic year. Wearing caps and gowns seniors sauntered onto the main floor to occupy the $1.50 seats at 10:00 A.M. (20 minutes from bed for some). In suit coats and ties (coupled with blue jeans and bare ankles for many), underclassmen repressed hostility at their inconvenience. Fifteen celebrants of the mass prayed for God's blessing on the upcoming academic endeavors.

The 1968-69 Basketball season at Regis could be characterized as a series of peaks and valleys for the varsity squad. Promise, hope, and elevated expectations once again were the mainstays as the netters opened the season against Colorado State College. For the first time in several seasons the Rangers captured a victory in their debut. Support ran high from the home front with the student body backing that Regis has lacked for years.

Improvement was evident at the guard positions with newcomers Tim Kelley and Rich Kafka displaying flashes of brilliance. The two freshmen fought the handicap of inexperience and exhibited positive potential for the Ranger effort. Bruce Powdrill showed elements of leadership and play-making ability as he sparked the team with his versatility and scoring. Veteran Pete McGuire came off the bench with his consistent hot hand.

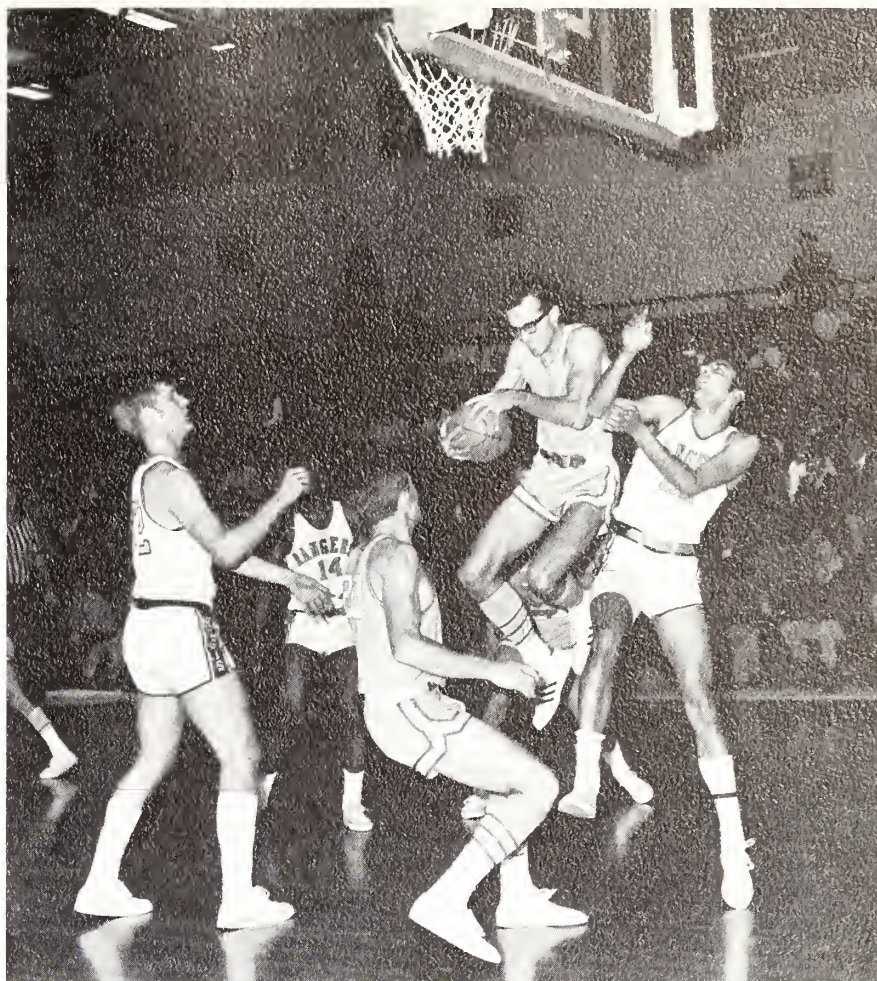

As in the past, internal strife and personality conflicts were a growing pain that curbed the efficient progress of an aspiring team. Coach Paul Fleming sought to resolve the strife by dismissing two of his top players for disciplinary reasons. Don Fortney, the teams leading scorer and captain, who lacked only 110 points to capture the all time scoring record at Regis, and top rebounder Mike O'Donnell found themselves relieved of duty at the peak of the most successful season in several years.

The Rangers semi-starters who added strength to the Regis effort were Rich Schraeder, Craig Chernick, Paul Drinkhaun, and Steve Weiman. During the '68-69 season the Rangers displayed long sought evidence of team ball handling and promise of building a winning tradition at Regis College.

Intramural Basketball 1968-1969

Holy cow! I just stole it from an active.

Oh my aching back . . .

An open-handed search.

Each year the intramurals feature a faster and better brand of basketball. Increased height in the frontcourt and better outside shooting has resulted in better games with higher scores, even among the more equally matched teams.

The record turnout of 27 teams necessitated tri-league competition and attested to the popularity of this pastime among all the students. While the Machine, last year's co-finalist had difficulty surviving, the Denver Club produced their second great team of the year. After winning the intramural football championship, they hit the court with a fast-breaking offense and impressive board control. The Case A squad foamed forth as a hot-shooting freshmen team. ADG - A legged out, fishing for a repeat of last year's championship.

In the B league, the Beefeater's, a Johnny-come-lately senior team bobbed from one victory to another.

Lectures

The academic year of '68-'69 saw the appearance of Mr. David Schoenbrun on the Regis campus. A senior lecturer in Vietnamese history at Columbia University and foremost expert on VietNam, Mr. Schoenbrun found a receptive and intrigued audience. A first on the campus and golden opportunity for the students was the production of a career day courtesy of the alumni office. Julian Bond was scheduled to appear in March but in true Regis tradition, he cancelled the engagement.

'77 Club—"To Overcome Apathy"

Apathy is the product of uninvolvedness, self-consciousness and an inability to make socially required value judgements. It has long been the scapegoat of the college campus. The '77 Club, under the direction of Bob Branand, attempted to attack this problem through an organizational thrust. Progressing on a philosophy of gung-ho-ism, they provided everything from donkey basketball through female cheerleaders to an orphan party.

A re-organization of the defunct Benchwarmers, the '77 Club had its hands full again this year attempting to arouse enthusiastic support for college athletics. The drum and kazoo drill team performance between halves of the Air Force game brought this year's spirit to its highpoint. Alas, nothing deflates like defeat and once again the psyche was broken by the scoreboard while the kazoos played taps to another Ranger upset attempt.

Arresting apathy is like sandbagging an incoming tide; it requires a constant and consistent effort throughout the night. The club was known to go out in the morning.

Beginning the year with more "officers" than members, the Irish Club pulled off two notable maneuvers. First off, they managed to bleed the General Assembly for the usual $50.00 at a time when the club consisted of one brave member. Secondly, after building up their membership, they successfully organized a Rugby team.

The members of the club convinced the Athletic Department that it takes special leather balls to play rugby and consequently were provided with two of them with which to start an official Regis College Rugby Team. Undaunted by frequent hospitalization of their forces, the Irish rugby players battled a number of much more experienced opponents such as D.U. and the Air Force Academy. Even though they failed to win any games, the team made their presence felt and have vowed that they will field a team again next year; that is, if the leather balls are still around.

Based on the principle of principles, the R-Club (The epitomes of our rhythms put to action on the courts, nets, and fields,) comes to us jacketed, smiling and brutish. Having successfully sponsored one "beer blast", having kept their eyes open to opportune factors and having been an integral part of our complex club society, the lettermen with tennis rackets, basketballs, band-aids, baseballs and so forth in hand, stroll across campus grounds to move the scoreboard for the benefit of the spectators and honor the tradition while the R-Club honors them. All in all, with the afternoon shadows having grown hazy, the striking attitude gone sour and letters discarded and forgotten, the R-Club steps to the forefront; those dedicated displays of sport, keeping us all young.

Varsity Swimming 1968-1969

The swimming team, dominated by Freshman, can only hope for a more fruitful season next year. Lacking the experience and the manpower of other opposing teams, they couldn't quite hack regular conference competition. As such Coach Ralph Grosswiler's first year at the helm of the tankers was one of frustration and disappointment with only minor triumphs. The loss of two experienced swimmers was an unforeseeable stroke of misfortune.

George Heavey, lone senior on the team, swam long distance while Rick Schneider specialized in the 200 yard free-style. Paul Halloron handled the 200 yard backstroke and Phil Riesselman competed mainly in the 200 yard individual medley and 200 yard breaststroke. Freshman Frank Cronan swam the 50 and 100 yard sprints and filled in wherever needed. Bill Shanley and Marty Caldwell dove for the team.

Records for a record in regression.

Last year saw a number of ideas originate in the Ranger office. It also saw a good number fail to get off the ground (eg. one helicopter). However on Oct. 18 one staff idea became successful reality—probably because the Ranger suggested the concept of a 1950's party to the Junior Class officers and let them do the work. Renamed the "Dick Clark Experience" in memory of American Bandstand, this sock hop offered faculty and upperclassmen alike an opportunity to regress back to their stress-free high school days. Coming the 1st Friday after mid-terms the timing was perfect.

While Bill Western, a popular KIMN D.J., spun "oldies-but-goodies" butch-haired "Snatch" Atchity and Alison Williams received 1st prize for their 1950's costumes.

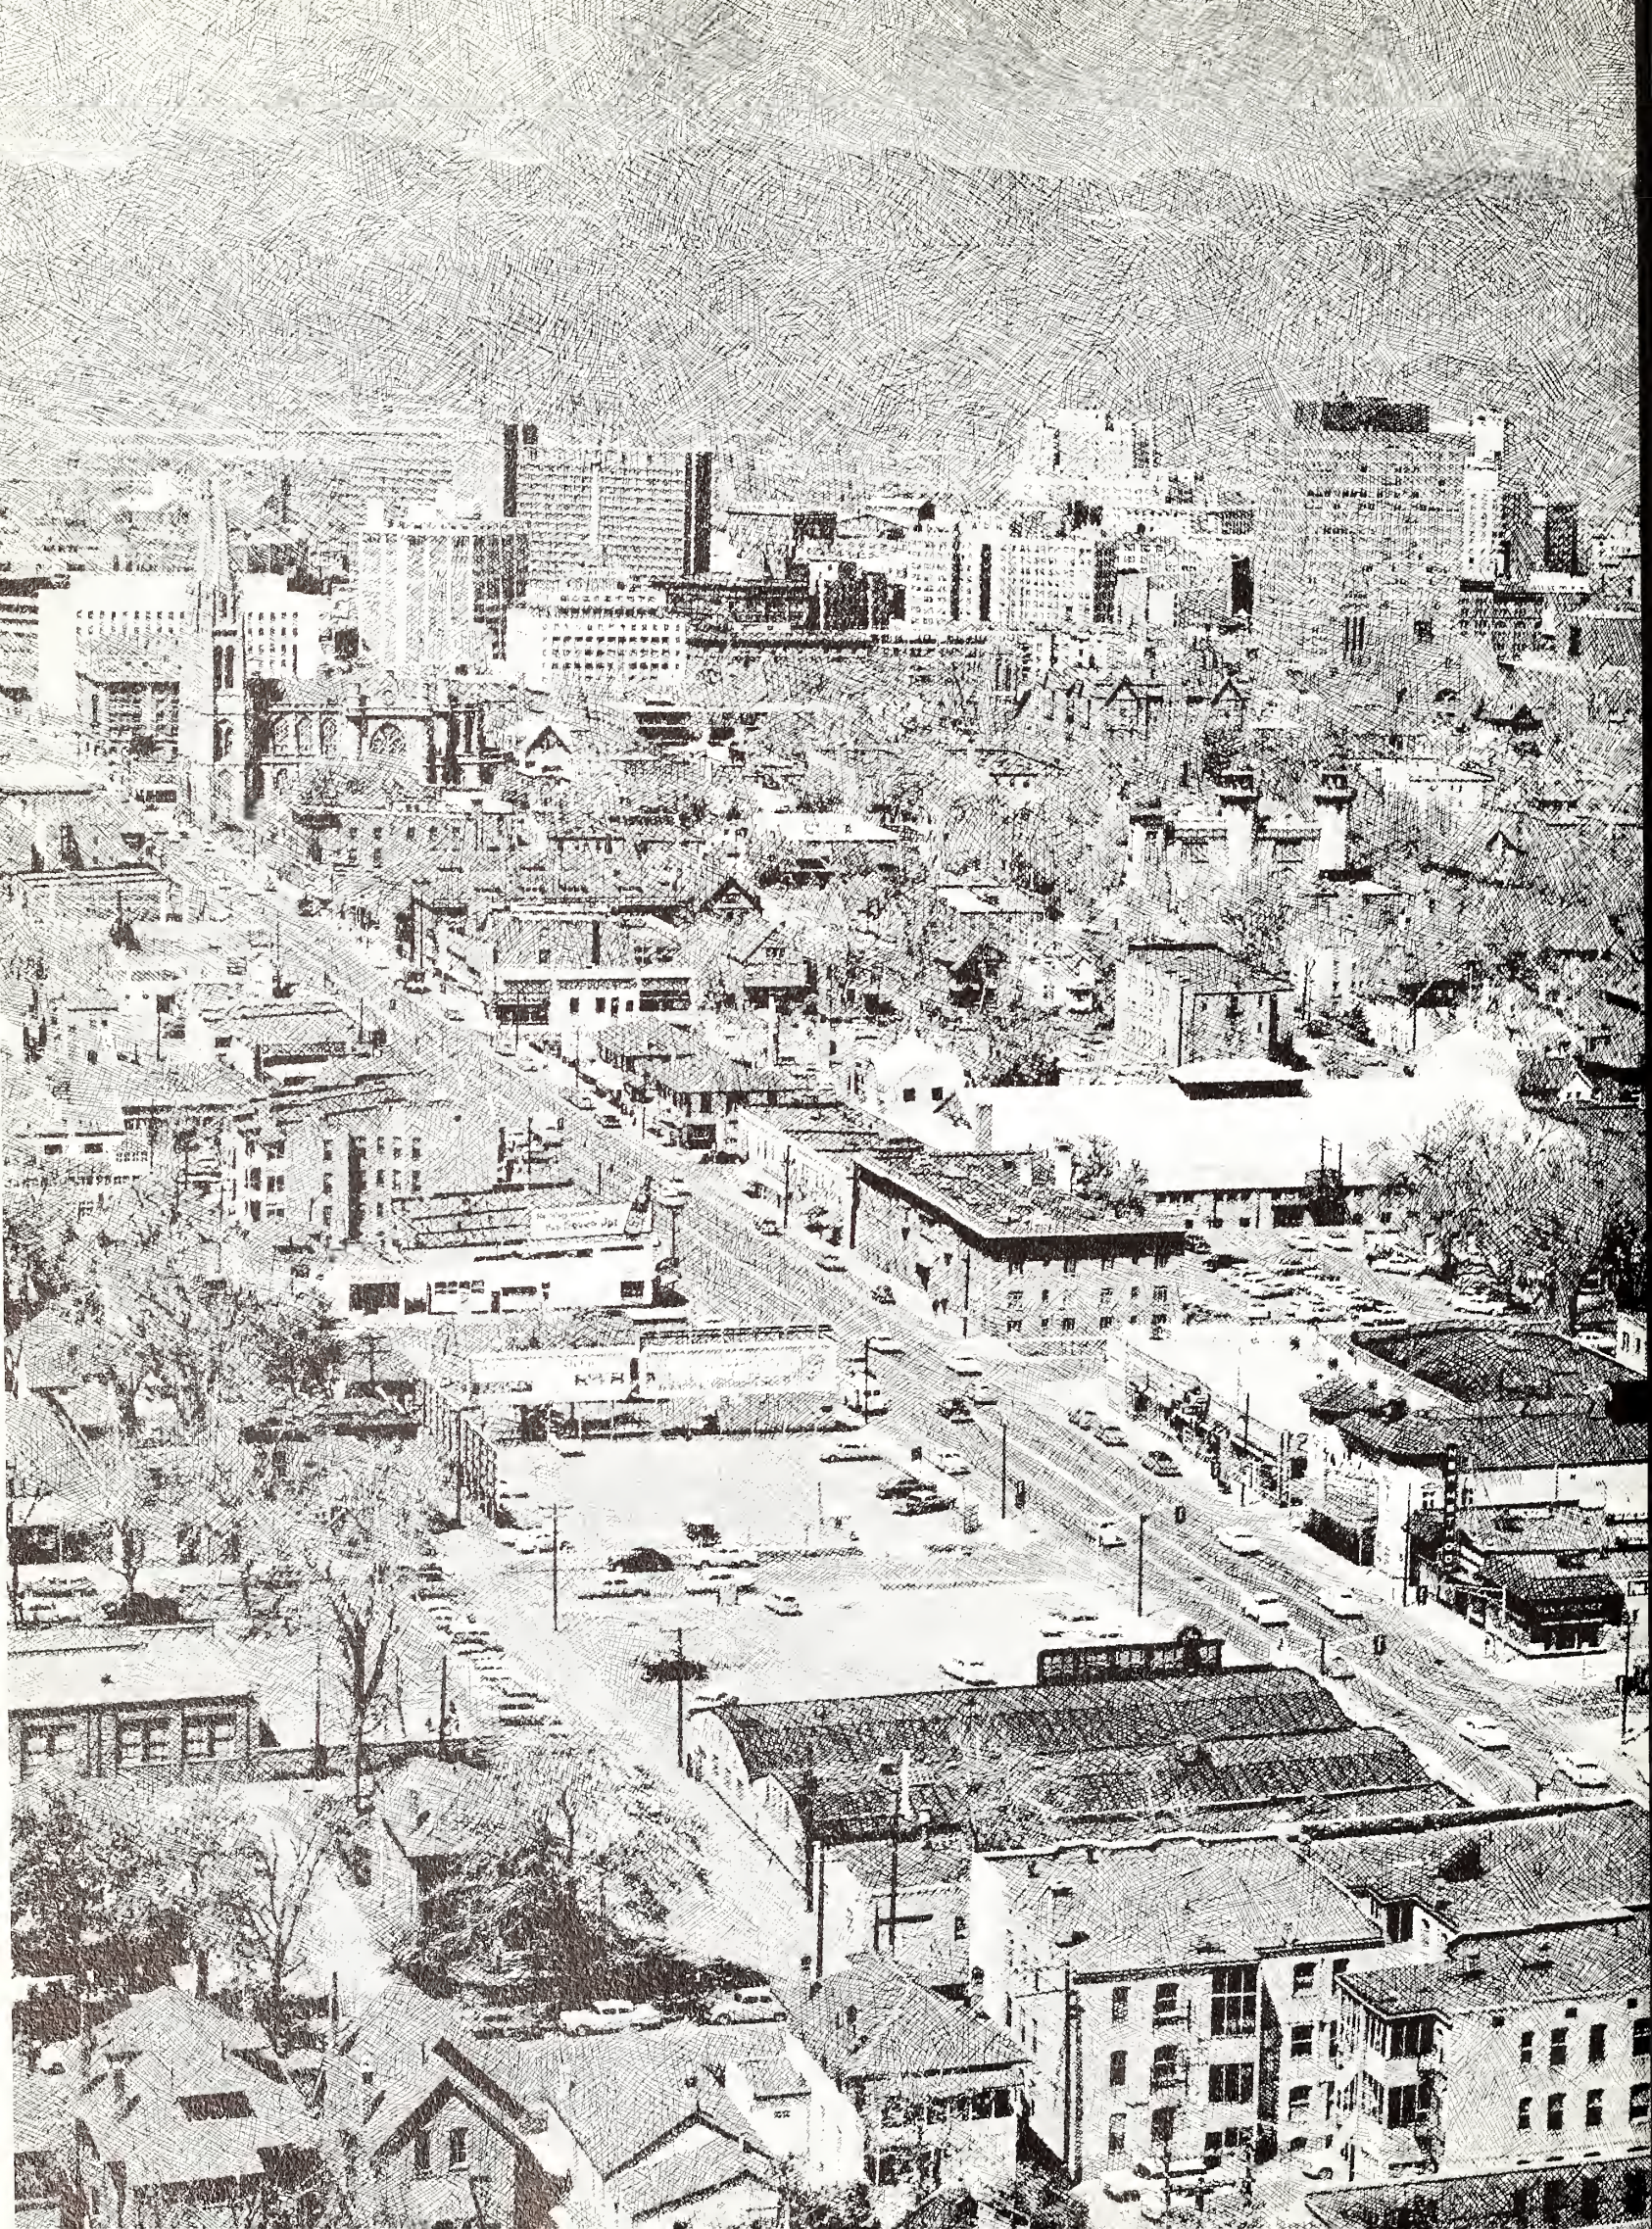

Other notable events included Mr. and Mrs. Flood practicing for next Sunday night's Lawrence Welk television show, and Father Maginnis debating the feasibility of ambulating back to the Pink Palace to obtain a pair of white socks. Only two points marred the evening: the lack of crepe paper decorations and Otis' inability to consume his share of beer.

Best of all, for the upperclassmen who managed to stumble in from pre-parties, admission was free. Or perhaps Jim Gold just neglected to find someone who would check tickets.

Siger Ski Club

Lacking the traditional, unforgettable Winter Carnival, Siger Ski Club wedged down through another successful season on the slopes. This year's snow capped mountains were colored with the rosy cheeks of Regis College's first co-ed snow bunnies. The club functions primarily to familiarize freshmen and other students with Ski Country U.S.A. Instructions, transportation, tow tickets and lunches are the ingredients of the club's offerings, not to mention many discounts available with a booklet offered by the club.

Guest speakers, movies, authorities on skiing and related activities highlight the ski club's meetings with penetrating insights into the excitement and techniques of one of the nations fastest growing sports.

Tom Flynn, president in charge, was responsible for bringing the club back into the black after Bob Alexander graduated with the treasury.

Ski Team

With Regis lying in the capital of Ski Country U.S.A., it seems ironical, that one of the least publicized varsity teams on the campus is the Ski Team. Such is the case, and somewhat understandable with the team's competitive endeavors taking place far and beyond the range of student support. However, on the western slopes of Vail, Mt. Werner, Breckenridge, and Loveland, these conditioned and eager men valiantly represent their school against the best of the Central Intercollegiate Alpine League.

Under the Fall whistle, and later the practical 60-degree pointers of Mr. Tim Donovan, the skiers are striving to better a second place conference standing of last year. Innovations in the conditioning field included Fall soccer and handball among other muscle toning antics. Hopes and chances run high of capturing the C.I.A.L. crown, hampered only by the loss of skier-coach Steve Grande.

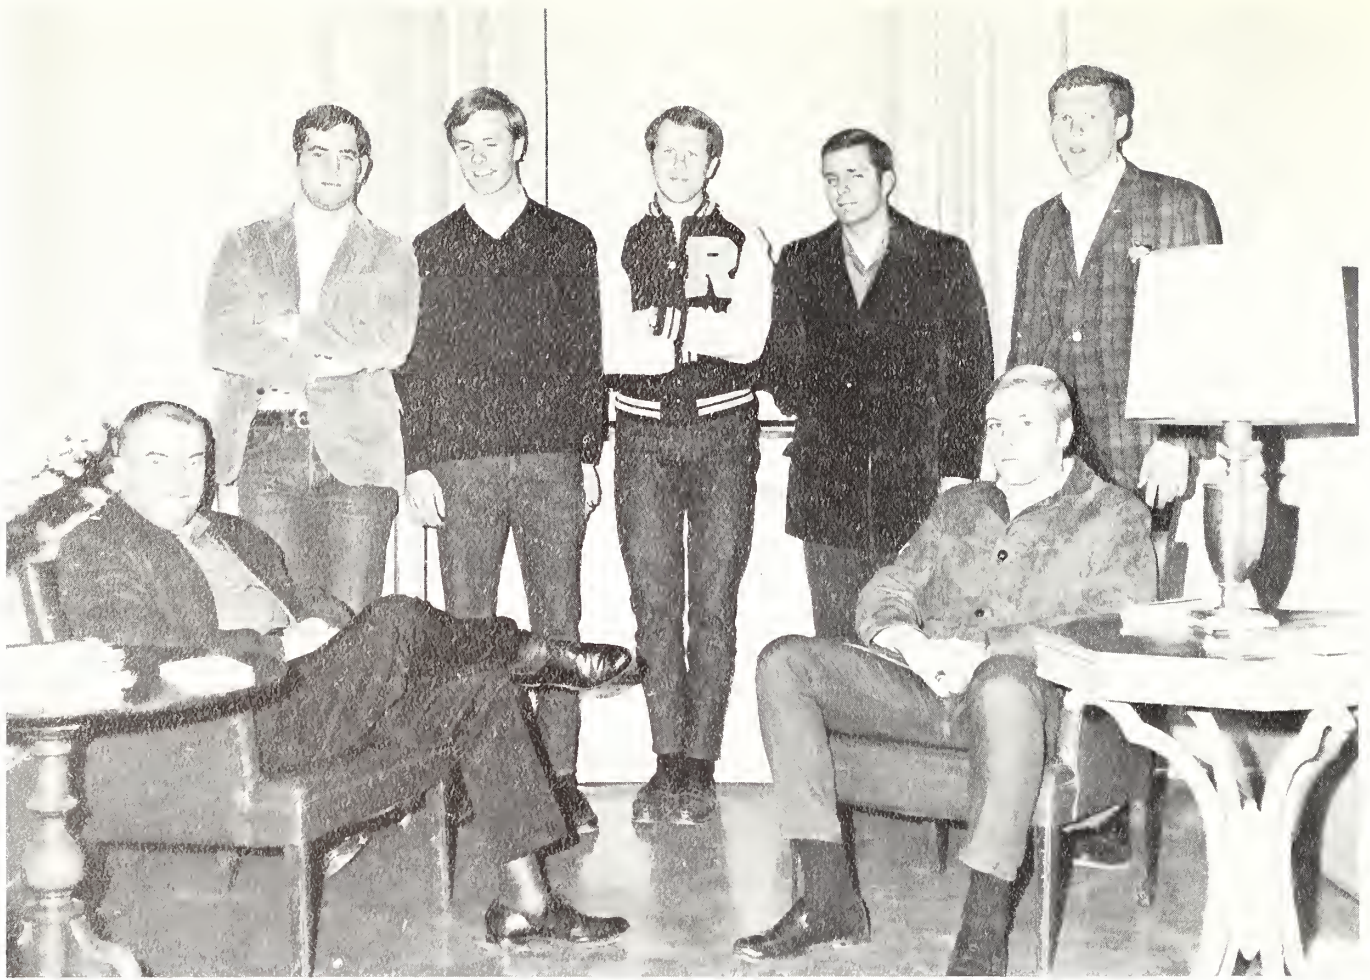

Headed by 1968's individual champion George Petrutz, presently assuming the role as captain, the team ventures westward on their own time and money. Finances allow for only a six man team as opposed to the oppositions eight. Despite the salt in their aspirations, the team strives to conquer the pace of competitors and the ever-constant curse of the clock.

Regis Flying Club, Incorporated

A yearling on the Regis Campus is the Flying Club Inc. Originated by a handful of aviation addicts, their purpose hovers around the desires to interest students in this rapidly growing pastime. Piloted by Mike Trauscht, Dan Pradel, and Bob Elmore, the club efficiently got its gear off the ground early in the second semester, after several months of ground preparation.

The club's purpose taxied around an effort to give interested students and faculty an opportunity to earn a private pilot's license. Having gained access to numerous aircraft for their educative jaunts, the members are now negotiating a course to obtain their own airport East of Denver. With this 35,000 foot conception circling their aspirations, the group adds reduced cost for ground and aerial instruction. Under the guiding wing of Fr. Maginnis, the members have high hopes of raising the ceiling on Regis College benefits one more degree.

Halloween Dance

Such advertising slogans as, "Bring your little pumpkin," sought to incite interest among the students in the annual A.D.G. Halloween bash, that beer-band with costumes syndrome. Held in the subterranean parking lot of the new Ramada Inn. ("It's impossible to do any damage to the place.") the ball offered a local band playing loudly with a faint touch of eeriness. (Some insisted the eeriness was completely unintentional and not too faint.)

The brothers, wearing ornate, orange togas, also provided foamy Coors, especially tapped to last longer.

Costumes of those attending ranged from a bathing suit and paint, through the pope and the pill, to a tape-encased mummie.

Milandia Marx received the motley crown of Ball Queen while a modern Bonnie & Clyde couple stole first prize for best costumes.

PXS Car Rally

"Maybe we missed the turn back there," cried the angry driver as a frustrated navigator ripped through reams of confusing directions. These same discarded and/or disregarded instructions were calculated to lead the participating "ranchers and company" over abandoned stagecoach trails from sun and aspens, pass snow and foamy beer to a final, unknown, destination.

Aided by check points featuring the brothers with a new set of ambiguous directions, most of the confused contestants eventually found themselves at the rally's end - Red Rocks Theatre. They then adjourned to Crowder's Stable (the only party-pen Rho Chi could obtain) for sandwiches, the proclamation of winners and the traditional beer-band exercise.

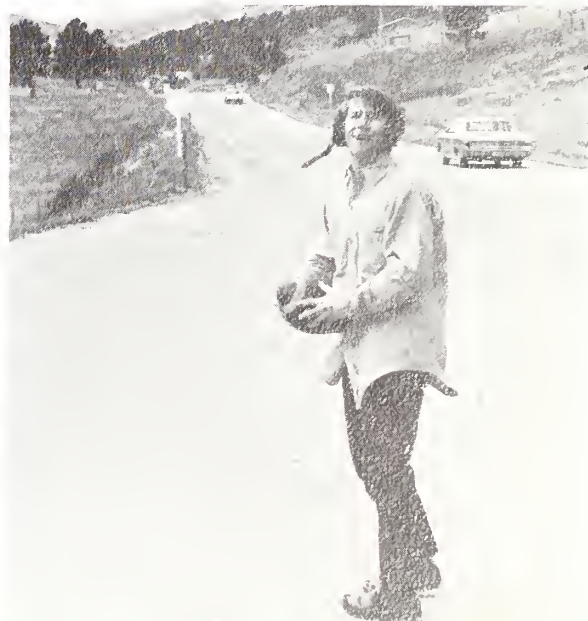

Winners were: Steve Stephany - 1st; Jim Gold - 2nd; Bob Langfield - 3rd. Losers were those too "preoccupied" or broke to take advantage of the opportunity.

One hairless leg doesn't equal a smooth run.

But Mom, they called me for illegal procedure in the back seat.

I'll bet my daddy has more money than her daddy.

1968-1969

In this life you have to grab while the grabbing is good.

Hi. My name is Lou. Don't you just love my nose?

Would you stop kicking?

Actually she's my date, you know.

I'm gonna eat ya'.

Coronation Ball

The brothers of AKY witnessed competition from all angles in the execution of their annual Coronation Ball. An amateur bogus press raised havoc in the ticket operation, while the queen candidates offered a first in age span for the competitors. Staged at the new Albany Hotel, amidst cries of cradle-robbing and home town voting, Regis's own Sandy Sollitt managed to nose out six month old Jennifer Munson and seven other candidates, and the Ranch had its first in-residence queen.

Encased by the sounds of the ear-racking "Dream", the Ranchers and their dates swallowed down another good time with all the trimmings. An open bar (for those who were 21) was a highlight of the evening for anyone who could afford the prices. A proper exhibition of frivolity and persuance toward the better side of the college life could best describe this venture. As one student so tritely put it, "It was a great time".

I'm so cool I can hardly stand myself.

I can press my own weight.

Inaugural Ball

Where is the bar around here?—Thirsty senior
What difference does it make, they just confiscated my bottle.—Disgusted senior

So the conversation flowed at the annual changing of the student government guard. The center of action for the evening was the happening in No. 843 (All the ice and glasses found a home) where the new and retiring executive boards sought their first and last bit of security from the public view.

The Brown Palace provided the atmosphere, Kathy Kaye and the Knights added the music, retiring Max supplied the antics, Jezo and company offered a $100 bill, and the students strove desperately to provide their dates and themselves with suitable liquid refreshment.

More than the average number of Ranchers and dates braved the snowy evening to venture forth from obscurity. As the night drew to a close, Kaye and the Knights held their audience amazingly well, Roth was saddled with the new order of authority, and the Regis scavengers managed to discover the best of the evenings offerings.

The Grounds Crew

Something really should be done about these sewers.

Under the guidance and counseling of Brother Knoll, the grounds crew wages a never-ceasing battle against student football games, disregard for sidewalks, and the weather. Fighting for green lawns and healthy shrubs, their arsenal includes mesh fences, thorn bushes, uncontrollable sprinklers, and hard work. Without their music-making snow plow we'd never get to class.

Could this be tokenism?

I may not be very good at shoveling when you consider some people here.

I just don't understand that page.

Sgt. Kelly's Lonely Hearts Club Band—"Do you mind if we play out of tune?"

The plot chickens as things are worked out by putting heads together.

Ranger Day

Doug Ebert playing his electric guitar-at full volume-unofficially opened Ranger Day about three hours too early for most people. The morning also featured a mass followed by brunch and Jim Kelley, Ranger Day Director, worrying about the tents collapsing courtesy of a strong wind.

The first Keg was tapped at 1:00 pm to the tune of "Hot Nuts" which a soon-to-graduate senior poured through his Carroll Hall window. Carnival booths offered socially acceptable activity. The whistle of kegs "blowing" and the music of "Your Father's Mustache Band" punctuated the circus atmosphere. Crowd anticipation gradually mounted for the expected arrival of the first yearbook via a "Ranger Helicopter". Everyone waited until the high point of the day arrived - word that the helicopter had broken down. A mildly embarrassed staff passed out the books in a less-spectacular-than-planned fashion.

After dinner, served picnic style, the brothers of Rho Chi Sigma sponsored a dance in the cafeteria featuring a rock band and more non-alcoholic 3.2 beer for the happy Rangers.

All part of the games ranchers play.

I don't like to do this but it's my job.

This is as much fun as the Hastings Stock Show.

Isn't that cute?

This beats watching them dance at the Stag.

What's an oral fixation?

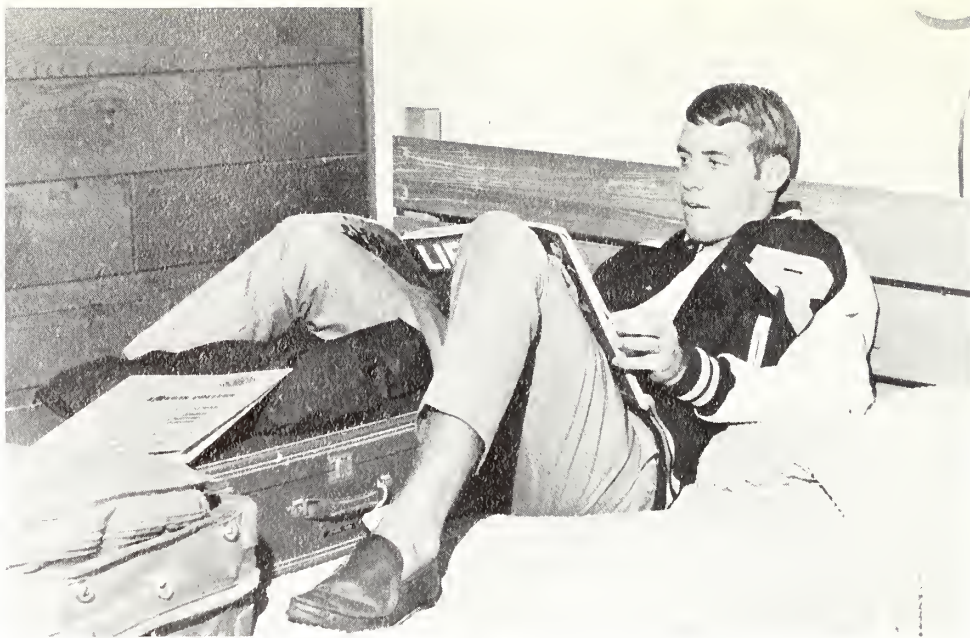

But I don't want to close the book.

I could give up my teddy bear for this.

And to think . . . this is the only session I can possibly attend.

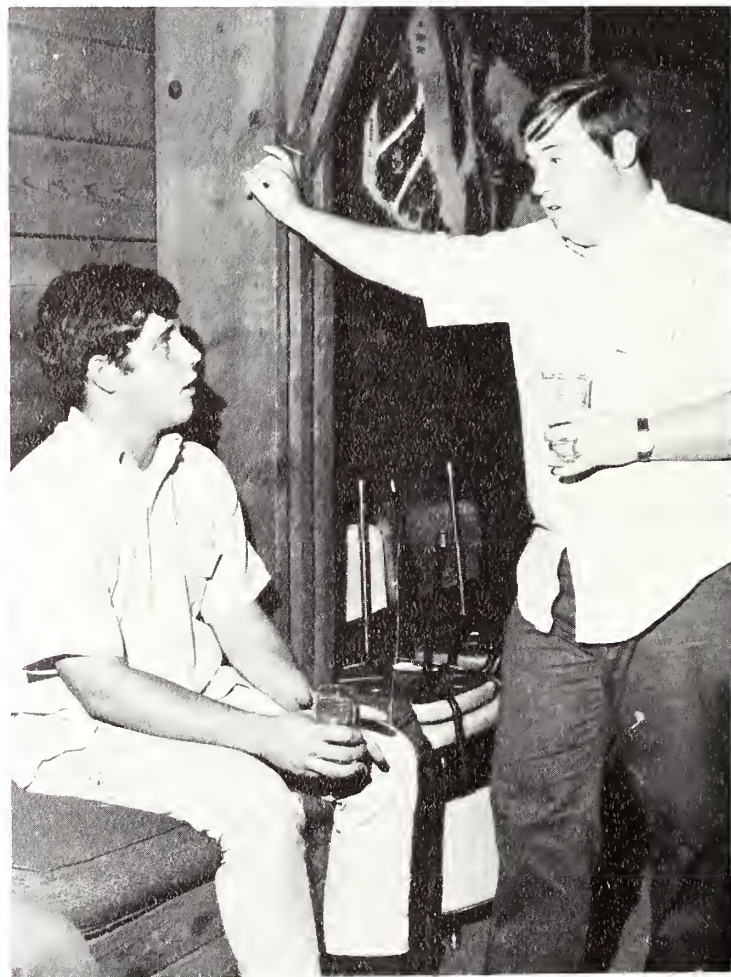

I'm a concerned and committed individual.

Fall Leadership Conference

It's all in the Family, but . . .

Weller told me that nobody had ever flunked his Soc. comps . . . yet.

This September, Idlewild Lodge hosted the Regis version of a New Years Eve party in which many New promises are made and the student-faculty relationship becomes as meaningful and lasting as the Office Party at National Can. Dewey Bartlett brought in the new year with fresh challenges and quixotic plans for radical revision and improvement which were received with a hearty applause and much verbal encouragement - after which everyone adjourned to the bar for a toast to the good old days and to discuss the real problems of the campus in less formal sentence structure. These informal Teas were the real bargaining periods of the Leadership Conference which served as both a Hal Mansfield sensitivity awareness session and an unofficial show-off period for the more verbose. The swimming pool took its usual toll along with the morning hangovers. A policy statement on student housing was the well-kept secret of the conference while several of the faculty' members had difficulties locating their own housing during the conference itself. Jack McCullough, bowing to the mandate of the people, forged ahead on a New Student Senate Constitution that was adopted later in the year. A follow up mini-conference, was held later in November for evaluation purposes, and managed to produce a resolution that would initiate an activities board to be used for announcing the scheduling of next years Leadership Conference.

Paul told me it proved something!

Actually I'm rather a mature Holden Caulfield type.

"OVERSOCIALIZATION!"

1969 Honors Banquets

At 6:30 Saturday, March 15, students, parents, faculty and administration assembled in the cafeteria to enjoy the Servomation Mathias delights and pay honor to various student achievements. Special "pledging" waiters delivered far above average food directly to the table (and Tom Mannings back).

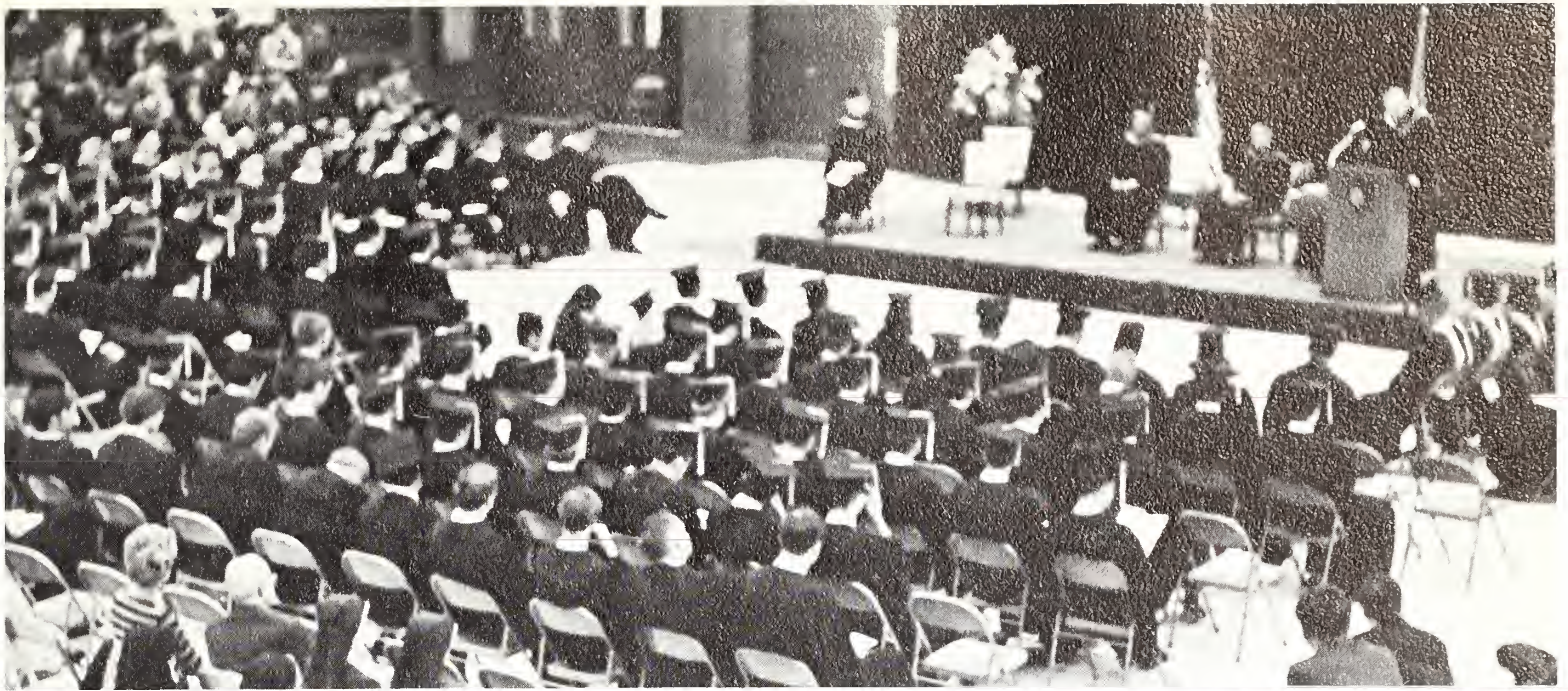

The meal settled to the tune of the Regis Songsters and their $50 piano. Mr. Haddock requested the assembly to listen closely to the words (possible in hopes they would miss the music).

Randy Roth introduced the new executive board with his Kansas accent and promised no student riots at Regis but rather a working out of community problems with communication.

Paul Max presented the highlight of the evening - a lecture and mail-order demonstration on the part or mystery of Extra-Sensory Perception by Mr. Russell Burgess. His night-club-like performance amazed and entertained the entire assembly. The most convincing of his performances was the accurate prediction of a headline in Saturday's "Denver Post" which he mailed in a certified letter to Father Houlihan one week earlier.

Following his act the awards were presented. Parents of the honored students were tickled and the students were glad to get the occasion over with.

Outstanding Event

Each year one event is selected as the outstanding function of a college organization. This year the '77 collected the prize for the Halloween party they gave the orphans of the area. Instead of patronizing establishments the club members (along with anyone else who could be aroused out of dogmatic slumber) grabbed dates and aesthetically offered up their evening for the benefit of 300 orphans who were then tricked, treated, and entertained.

Not only did the event provide the kids (both young and old) with a whale of a good time but it resulted in a good deal of favorable publicity for the college. Dennis Moroney, as chairman of the organizational review committee, presented the award.

Siger Ski Club Award

For his active participation in the all popular sport of skiing through the Siger Ski Club and the Regis ski team, and for his excellence in this demanding and challenging area, the Outstanding Skier Award goes out to the man on the slopes, Pat Bains. Assisting in the activities of the Siger Ski Club (That's Regis spelled backwards for the green-horns to this institution) and portraying the Killy aire on the racing slopes Pat has come to be recognized by his own members as an outstanding skier and friend. Paul Max presented the award.

Outstanding Organization

The recipient of the Outstanding Organization Award for the academic year of '68-'69 was the Theater Guild. Led by John Samson and his determined cohorts, under the direction of Mr. Dennis Gallagher and Mr. John Griess, this group sacrificed and worked hard in their efforts to produce near professional productions on the Regis campus. It is for their continued and constant striving to improve themselves and their dramatical productions, under less than perfect physical conditions, that they were proclaimed this years outstanding organization.

Their fine efforts this year produced such plays as, "The Clouds", "Henry the IV", "Zoo Story", "Man For All Seasons", and three one act plays.

SNEA Service Award

The Student National Education Association service award is given to the student who, the members feel, has contributed the most in the field of education to the organization, school and state. This year the award was presented by Bill Munsell, Vice-President of the S.N.E.A., to Richard Janning, President of the organization.

The outgoing and incoming Student Senate Executive Board member annually bestow the title of "Man of the Year" on those students who they select as having significantly contributed to the success of student projects throughout the year.

Basically the requirements for this award are membership in the old executive board or hard work and dedication to Regis College coupled with future promise. Father Mattione, President of the College presented the awards.

The 2nd Annual Ranger

"Teddy Bear" Awards

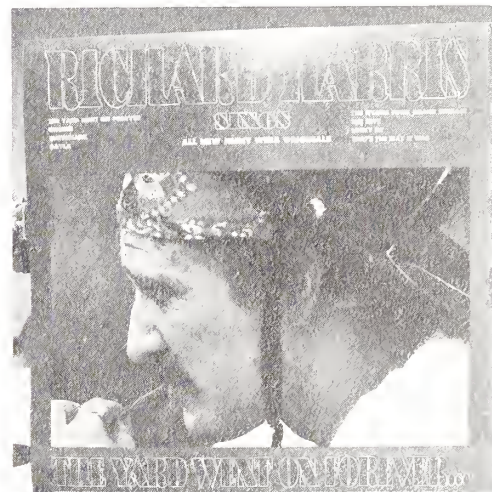

Ranger Disc Jockey—Larry Vanore

The RANGER Staff hereby dedicates this page to Larry Vanore, early-morning disc jockey for KHOW, the music he plays and the music he doesn't. Although he, and his station, play only watered-down renditions of popular "rock", thus earning themselves the title of a middle-age KIMN, he does provide the background for most Regis students engaged in all-night cram-sessions or insomnia over metaphysical problems about life or over-seasoned pizza.

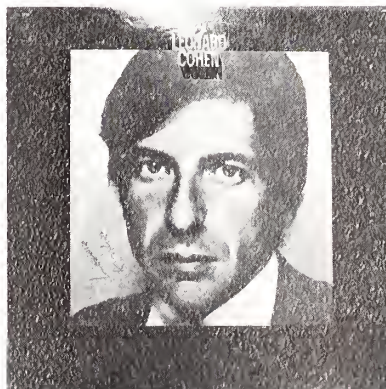

More important, Larry was an essential component of this years RANGER, even though he never found "Inka-Dinka-Doo" for us. Subjected to a barrage of requests from staff members, amidst all-nighters, he preserved much of the good humor (Whatever there is to be found of it in the book) by dedicating several songs a night to overexposed photography editors and neurotic copy writers. The 3:00 A.M. Rod McKuen-Hour inspired our caption writers and sickened our business manager while causing everybody to clear their throats and head for the coffee. G. Lauby had to use the KHOW request line as a form of executive therapy since most of the time no one else seemed to heed G.'s pathetic attempts at playing dictator. Being the only D.J. in Denver that plays Jimmy Webb songs sung by Richard Harris, and receptive to our brand of insanity, this dedication page as a formal adoptive measure became a must.

For the last time fellows, we don't play The Fugs.

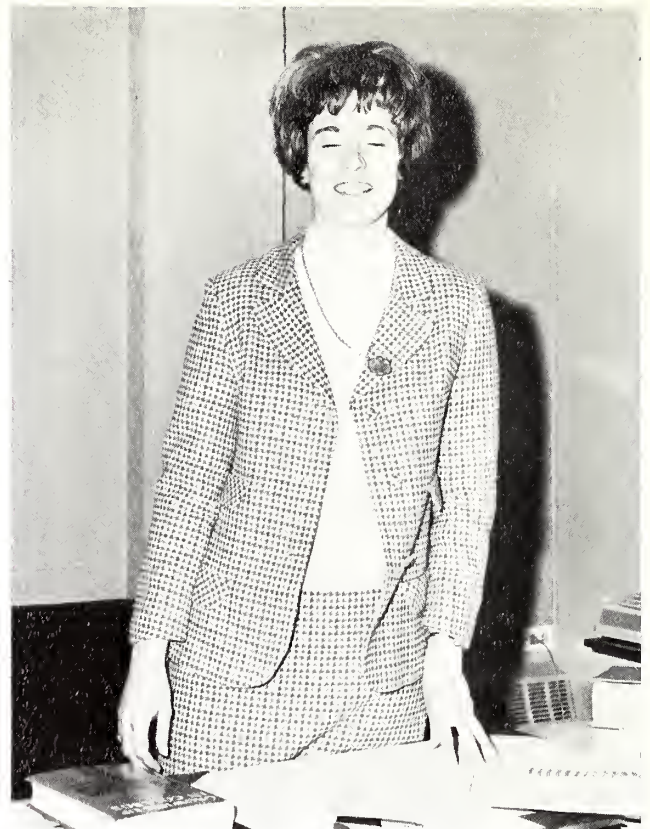

This is quite a book, fellows. Ever been sued?

The "League of Nations" Award

Miss Keough (or Connie as she is benevolently known) entered Regis this fall with an idealism that would make Woodrow Wilson proud. Among her many projects in an organizational approach were a new fraternity (a freshman venture); an inter-fraternity council (another President's Council?); and an All Women Council (a student senate for females?). For her diligent efforts to gain popular support we hand her the "League of Nations" Award in the best tradition of Henry Cabot Lodge.

The "Mission Impossible" Award

A most welcomed interruption from Ranger all-night work is the appearance of the campus guard, Mr. Frost. Better known as Frosty to his friends, this man is tacked with the mission of knowing all that occurs on campus in the wee hours of the morning. Unknown to most, he abounds with names, places and times of supposedly secretive events, entirely to the astonishment of the flubbing Jimmy Valentines.

For secret service duty far and beyond the call of the self-destructing tape recorder and the attitude displayed by his own words, "If I know it's students . . .", we take this opportunity to bestow him with the "Mission Impossible" Award.

The "Preservation of Pomp" Award

Few of us have found it possible to live in a rarefied atmosphere. Fr. Hoewischer, however, not only lives, but thrives in a frigid, high altitude existence, where even angels, S.J. fear to tread. An appointment? In three weeks. Oh, Cavalier, would that we all could be so noble.

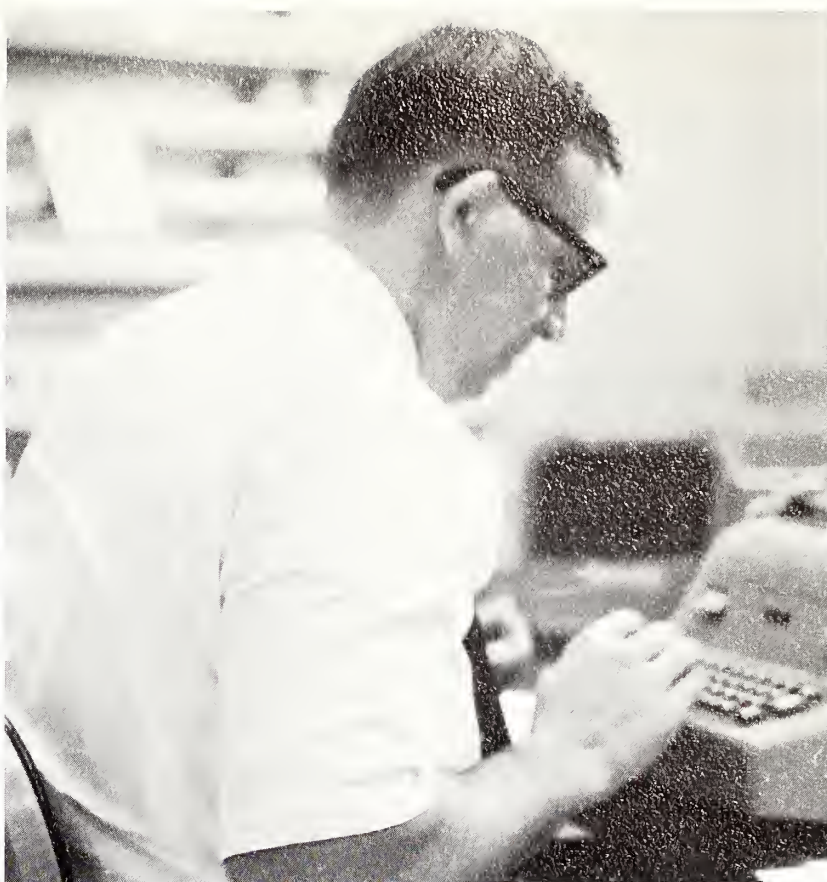

The "Joseph Glidden" Award

Joseph Glidden was the man responsible for the mass production of barb wire, therefore, he can be regarded as the man who fenced in the frontier. Donald Salmon has performed a similar service for Regis College. No longer will Ranchers in History wander the open range with a spirit of adventure not knowing what is expected of them. The history department under the fearless direction of Big Don and seconded by Stan and the Coach, has set new boundaries to channel the restless Ranchers. A part of the wild West has been tamed by Big Don and true Ranchers are dismayed to see it. Geronimo!

"Prague-Is-a-Summer Festival" Award

Our man in Prague last Summer was that famed international traveler, Doc Levings. Present when the Soviets cruelly crushed the Czech springtime, Doc according to one rumor, in true Regis tradition wrote obscene anti-Russian slogans on the invaders tanks in sanskrit. As Doc observed on his return, "The Russians are like any other aggressors, the . . .".

The "Outstanding Defensive Play" Award

It was a great year for the game. Alice won the toss and elected to receive. Unfortunately she fumbled on the students 25 yard line and surrendered the ball. That was her last offensive play of the game. But flanked by a graduate school background and her personal experiences, countless references to the problems of playing on a non-neutral field and the only rule book, she kept the match more than even. At the end of the first quarter she led a blistering defensive attack that surprised most of the student veterans. The second quarter incurred bloodshed and the half ended with several members of the student team suspended because they spent too much time on the bench.

The students received a third quarter and Alice appeared with an even stronger defense. The students were tempered, however, by a statement issued by the CHIEF GAME OFFICIAL that expulsion would replace suspension as a penalty for not playing, and with this incentive for unity they forged on to the ten yard line. However, when the fourth quarter began she had yet to use her big play . . . comprehensives.

The "Little Napoleon" Award

Some men have visions, some men have dreams, some simply take charge. Steve Hannan is a take charge guy. As one of his classmates put it, "If there was a twenty-two car smash-up on the Valley Highway with bodies all over the place, Steve would be on the spot directing traffic."

Well-tolerated by all his friends, this balding boy wonder always makes the seventh place at the dinner table. For successfully projecting the junior corporate lawyer image for four years of his Regis career, we present Steve with the "Little Napoleon" Award. Happy Elba, Steve.

The "Charlie Brown Pitching" Award

The type of senior a freshman girl would give a speech about, Jack McCullough typifies the old man of the mound. Whatever the pinch Jack waddles out of the bullpen to deliver whatever pitch could best be clouted a country-mile. Lacking only a Lucy with a 5¢ psychiatric booth, Jack is a mainstay for the B & G, G. A., Ranger and any other losing student cause.

Lest we seem too harsh on Jack it should be noted that his high E.R.A. results mainly from inexperienced catchers who allow Jack's waning spitballs to pass over their heads. For always looking forward, however cynically, to the next game, we throw Jack The "Charlie Brown Pitching" Award, without much hope he'll ever catch it.

The "Rolling Stoned" Award

Our candidate for this award is the happy-go-lucky short-hitter of the shuffleboard, Don Maes. Two beers and our man is rolling toward the edge of suspended animation. His resolutions condemn the spirits with the coming of every dawn but find themselves drown as the dark once again covers the cabin. Our condolences to Don every A.M., and our congratulations to his efforts to attain bigger and better heights by shuffling down life's board. It is with throbbing heads and heavy stomachs that we hangover Don The "Rolling Stoned" Award for '68-'69.

The "Vince Lombardi" Award

Through his consistent thirst for victory, Bob Collins gathered a fistful of retired high school stars from Carroll Hall and labeled them the Beefeaters. This fledgling group of senior comrades sprinted from bar to bar and had no fear of Lucky Strikes. Rigid training rules prohibited hard liquor on the field or court during games, and no beer or cigarettes in the huddles. With bird in the hand, Bob's 90 proof mixture floated immediately to the top of the intramural glass. We congratulate Bob on elevating his Beefeaters to this high position of esteem, and thereby pour unto him the "Vince Lombardi" Award. (Ed. Note; Some mention also should be made of Coach Paul Fleming who was first runner-up for this award.)

The "Genesis" Award

The "Franny Glass" Award

The only non-senior selected this year, "Smilin'" Betty was chosen in recognition of her personification to the Ranchette status as the one most likely to continue and set tradition. In a fight to negate a "high school valedictorian" image (which no one cared about anyway) she rejected one Zooey after another, continually seeking Seymour and a decent Jesus prayer.

As a mode of reassurance we offer Betty Losinski the "FRANNY GLASS" Award secure in the knowledge that the ducks go someplace in the winter.

The "Sampson" Award

From the depths of the woods comes our bearded leatherneck man of the hour, Charlie Gilliland. The most aggressive center in intramural football and the first up at dawn to track the Elk, now has shaven his rugged exterior clean. Beardless and scented, Charlie can now be seen tracking the grass of the campus with his captured maiden from the third floor tower. Best of luck to the first Ranch team entering the woods of matrimonial bliss.

The "Dr. Strangelove" Award

Tucked away in the Carroll Hall blockhouse, college demolition expert John Barker slaves away at his research. Using readily available materials like sugar, coat hangers, lighter fluid, match heads, scalpel and tooth picks, this campus minuteman manages to concoct his make-shift missiles, then guide these innovations with striking accuracy from his launchpad window. Through the gunpowder smoke and the danger signs of his tiny laboratory, we explosively extend to our man on the pad, the "Dr. Strangelove" Award.

"Dear, damn'd, distracting
Town,
Farewell:
Thy fools no more I'll tease."
—Alexander Pope

Dear Reader;

This letter generally serves a twofold purpose. First it provides the editor one last chance to speak his mind, to say what otherwise would remain unspoken; it is his opportunity for one last parting shot. However, in recalling the last four years which I have already, for the most part, shot, I find there is really nothing more I need to say.

In fact, after glancing over the four yearbooks I have helped produce, I rather wonder if I haven't done entirely too much verbal sunt-piloting even if much of the message passed over the heads of those who had paid the price of admission.

Still I suppose I should give a word of explanation about the 1969 Ranger. By the time you get around to reading this letter you will be, in some way, upset. I can hear you now saying, "I just don't think the yearbook is the place to..." or "What will my children say?" Editing is a funny business, one is criticized for saying too much and not saying enough by the same person and in the same breath.

Such criticism really doesn't really shake up my day too much. No doubt we have made mistakes this year and for that I apologize. But our goal has been to capture the spirit of the year and the events. To do this we used every device we could think of—some of which will fail. Still spirit is a very intangible thing and what conveys it for some will leave others cold. I hope you find something in the book both meaningful and enjoyable. That's all we really expect.

If the book seems high negative I can only remind you that the only reason the bad is intolerable is because of its striking contrast with the good. Generally we are proud of Regis. Our criticism is based in the firm belief that Regis is worth criticizing.

The second purpose this space normally serves is to thank those to whom the editor finds himself indebted. Doug Ebert, last years Editor-in-chief, tops the list. For me thoughts of Doug are inseparable from all-night sessions, the Rolling Stones, friendship and the yearbook. I never fully realized how much he contributed to the success of last years yearbook until we were forced to proceed without him this year. In many ways it was the memory of his energy, his favorite statement, "It's gotta be good", his spirit which carried us on.

Father Maginnis, not so much for what he did but for what he is. As one of the staff members put it, "Having Father Maginnis for a moderator is like being a poor, opposed farmer in a Western movie and knowing John Wayne is not only on your side but close at hand.

Kevin Leahy, whose last minute, two week sprint provided nearly every picture in the book, is, in many ways, the hero of this book. Gary Wilson not only contributed his wit, energy and other talents but also a typist. James McCaffrey handled the sales of the book and moonlighted, quite literally, as a staff person in layouts copy and caption production. He also provided the counsel which helped me retain what sanity I have left.

Pat Gartland edited the underclass pages and had them all ready by the second deadline. Joe Canepa first whipped off the senior section and chimed in on copy and caption chores.

Bill Witcher and Rick Garrity are principally responsible for the sports pages while Jerry Carpenter did the bulk of the work on the faculty pages.

Together we harassed disc jockeys, drank coffee, filled the room with smoke and verbal baiting, discussed a little bit of everything, missed parties and watched sunrises. Hopefully we also produced an enjoyable yearbook.

Farewell,

G. Lauby
